CAPITOL FIRE DESTROYS ART WORKS

BOMB SUSPECT HUNT RECEIVES BALTIMORE AID

STAR OF STONE CASE AT BELAIR ASSIGNED

Dead Bride and Infant Brother to Be Buried This Afternoon.

YOUNG SISTER STILL REPORTED VERY LOW

Elderly Bachelor Continues Under Suspicion; Sales of Dynamite Probed.

Two Baltimore detectives will get on the trail of Seat Pleasant's dynamite killer today, and the prospect is that an arrest will be made before nightfall.

The two detectives who were detailed to the crime at the suggestion of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie are Lieut. Joseph H. Itzel and Sergt. Charles Schalter, the former of whom recently distinguished himself in the Stone poison mystery at Bel Air, Md. As a result of his work in that case, Hattie B. Stone now is serving an eight-seen-year sentence for poisoning her 14-year-old son George.

The two dead in the New Year's Day bomb blast at Seat Pleasant—Naomi Hall Brady, 18, and her baby brother (19-month-old Samuel Hall)—will be buried side by side in the Mount Oak Cemetery, near Mitchellville, Md., this afternoon.

Girl, 4, Still in Danger.

Dorothy Hall, 4, the most seriously injured of the remaining members of the family who were in the Hall kitchen when the bomb, camouflaged as a Christmas box, exploded, was reported at Sibley Hospital last night to be "very low."

Mrs. Nora Hall, 45, the mother, who suffered the loss of an eye and severe abdominal injuries, and two of her sons, Leslie, 16, and Thomas, 8, still are in Providence Hospital. Leslie lost part of his hand, and Thomas also suffered an injury to his hand.

The two Baltimore detectives last night conferred with Sheriff Charles S. Early, but they planned to defer until today an active search for the bomb murderer.

Dynamite Buyers Sought.

The arrival of the two men last night came at a time when the citizenry of Seat Pleasant was beginning to despair of a solution of the atrocious crime. Until now, the investigation has been handled entirely by County Policeman Frank Prince, with some aid from the Washington detective bureau.

Yesterday Officer Prince, accompanied by Headquarters Detective John Fowler, of Washington, toured the Seat Pleasant district in an effort to learn from merchants the identity of persons who recently have purchased dynamite.

An elderly bachelor remains the outstanding suspect. This man, who tried in vain to win Naomi Hall, is said to have become hysterical when he learned recently that she had married Herman Brady, a 22-year-old farmer.

The results of the autopsy performed on the body of Mrs. Brady Thursday night by Dr. James I. Boyd, of Forestville, will be made known to the two Baltimore detectives today.

Just nine days after fire ruined the executive offices of President Hoover in the White House on Christmas Eve, flames curled menacingly around the base of the Capitol dome last night, destroying the studios of the Capitol artist, in which were many valuable works of art in process of restoration, and damaging many records in the House document storage room adjoining the studio.

Thousands of curious spectators jammed the Capitol plaza to watch the crews of 27 fire companies which responded to the five alarms rung in when the blaze was discovered a few minutes before 7 o'clock by John Heinberger and John L. Bass, of the Capitol police force.

By 7:30 o'clock the flames had been extinguished, and inspection of the damage was possible. David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, after a preliminary investigation, stated that the damage probably will not exceed $3,000, and that an official investigation will be started today to determine the cause of the blaze.

Electrical Wiring Perfect.

Electrical wiring in the studio model room, where the fire originated, was found to be in perfect condition, and Mr. Lynn expressed a belief that a carelessly dropped cigar or cigarette might have caused the fire. Most of the damage, he said, was caused by water and by destruction of a skylight which forms the room of the studio and which was broken in by the firemen in their efforts to reach the fire.

Numerous copies of records of congressional proceedings, committee reports, laws and other documents stored in the adjoining storage room were ruined by fire and water, but they were all duplicates of others filed among the House archives, and their loss therefore is not serious.

Carl Moberly, the Capitol artist who has been engaged in restoring portraits and sculptural works among the art treasures of Congress, was in the studio when the fire started and was overcome by smoke fumes. After being given first-aid treatment in one of the House offices by Dr. George Calver, naval physician assigned to duty at the House of Representatives, Mr. Moberly was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Smoke Might Have Been Fatal.

Dr. Calver expressed an opinion that Mr. Moberly was not seriously affected, but declared that if he had remained much longer in the smoke-filled studio, the result might have been fatal. The physician reported that Mr. Moberly had received a slight cut on the left side of his face, probably the result of a fall when he was overcome.

Apparently the fire had been burning for more than an hour before the alarm was turned in, as J. Crawford Shanks, disbursing clerk of the House of Representatives, and Sydney H.

RABBI DEFENDS RACE IN ASSAILING JUDGE

TALK CALLED KU KLUXIAN

Declaring that "no respect of mine for him can withhold me from calling Judge Cayton, the Jew, before the bar of American public opinion for his unseemly, gratuitous, untrue and cruel condemnation of his people and religion, and yours and mine," the Rev. Dr. Abram Simon, rabbi of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, in an address at the Eighth Street Temple, last night, taking as his subject, "Jewish Self-Criticism," launched a bitter and scathing refutation to a recent sermon delivered by Municipal Judge Cayton on "the Jewish Crime Wave."

Speaking before the Adas Israel Synagogue, a week ago, Judge Cayton charged that in recent years the Jews of this country had failed to perform their duties as Jews and Americans, adding, "I believe that in the average Jewish home far too little has been said to our growing children about the Ten Commandments. And, I believe far too little has been said about the virtue of respect."

During the course of his remarks Judge Cayton stressed the point that at one time a Jewish crime wave would have been scoffed at as a rarity, but that the situation had changed overnight and that today every class of criminal has its representative in the Jewish race. Admonishing his hearers to heed the appeal of President Hoover for a more rigid observance of the laws of the land, he concluded, "We must never forget that America has given us much and that she has a right to demand much in return."

"Ordinarily one can dismiss with a smile what Mr. Nathan Cayton says, but what Judge Cayton says, a Government official, whose position calls for judicial temper, wide reading, and an understanding heart is quite another thing. Had the address been delivered by a non-Jew, one might have said, "Well, what can you expect?" But when one of our own household prints poison to become anti-Semitic meat, what self-respect-

DRY LAW IN DISTRICT URGED BY MITCHELL

Two Additional Justices for Supreme Court Also Recommended.

REPORT SENT TO CAPPER

The Senate District committee is expected to turn its attention to the recommendations of Attorney General William D. Mitchell for better prohibition enforcement in the District shortly after Congress reconvenes next Monday. Whether it will favor the proposal to report favorably on the enactment of a local prohibition law is confectural. The recommendation for the appointment of two additional District Supreme Court judges, it is believed, will meet with readier response.

The proposals were revealed yesterday in a report to Senator Arthur Capper, chairman of the District committee, sent in answer to a request for suggestions on improving law enforcement in Washington and thus realizing the hope of President Hoover to make the Capital a model city.

The chief feature of the prohibition bill, which was drafted by Senator Howell, of Nebraska, an ardent dry, would be to extend to all policemen of the District authority to cooperate in prohibition enforcement, and to reenact certain parts of the old Sheppard law. At present only a small number of policemen are available for dry law work.

The Attorney General also calls attention to need for legislation in Washington supervising the sale of securities. In this regard Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, a member of the District committee, said that the committee had been at work for some time on such legislation, but that there are so many phases of the problem to be considered that it would require much study and research to draft an effective law.

The Attorney General does not go the whole way with Senator Howell in his proposal for a local prohibition law. He approves all save one of the provisions of the bill, the exception being a section which would have permitted the issuance of a warrant to search a private residence where "a still or distilling apparatus is unlawfully set up or being used within, or intoxicating liquor is unlawfully de-

Policeman and Youth Wounded in Gun Fight

Fugitive May Die After Alleged Shooting of Patrolman in "Murderers' Row" Off L Street Northwest; Stolen Automobile Recovered.

The failure of three men in an alleged stolen auto to turn on their lights led to an exchange of pistol shots and the serous injury of a Second Precinct Policeman and a colored fugitive about 9 o'clock last night in what police call "Murderers' Row," regarded as one of the toughest beats in this city.

Policeman Van Doren Hughes, 30 years old, of 602 Tuckerman street northwest, was shot three times at the L street entrance of Logan's court, near First street northwest, as George Wharton, 20 years old, colored, of 2713 P street northwest, his alleged assailant, turned and fled into the dark alley. A few minutes later the fugitive was brought down by the gun of Policeman Robert Bryant, partner of Hughes.

Both men were in a serious condition late last night, but hospital attendants expressed belief that the policeman would recover. The Negro's chances of living were said to be much slimmer.

The trouble started after Hughes and Bryant, riding in a police roadster, ordered the three Negroes in another roadster to stop as the two cars passed on L street. Instead of obeying the command, the colored driver speeded up until a couple of blocks farther west on L street they crashed into a truck.

As the three jumped out of the damaged car and started to run the policemen followed them. Wharton ran down L street to Logan's court with Hughes gaining on him. As they reached the entrance the fleeing youth is alleged to have turned and fired his gun, a .32-caliber automatic, seven times at the policeman. Three of the seven bullets reached their marks.

The fallen policeman fired as he lay on the ground, and it is believed his bullet took effect in the youth's right ankle. Bryant, coming close behind Hughes, took up the chase until he cornered Wharton behind a box in the back of Louis Sandler's store. He fired three times at the crouching man and then kicked his gun from his hands. Wharton is said to have fired twice at Bryant as the two ran down the alley.

Hughes was hurried to Sibley Hospital, where the bullets were found to have entered his left wrist, his left leg and the lower part of his back. He told fellow-policemen that the first shot hit his wrist, the second his leg, causing him to fall, and the third struck as he lay on the ground.

As Wharton was being led to the ambulance which carried him to Emergency Hospital, he cried: "Oh, I wish I was dead."

VIRGINIA BANK HAUL NETS ROBBER $4,400

FARMER'S WIFE IS HELD

Aroused by the bold robbery yesterday of the Farmers & Merchants National Bank of Hamilton, Va., the first ever perpetrated in Loudoun County, officers of Virginia and Maryland, acting quickly, with thoroughness and precision, last night had recovered $2,367 of the $4,400 loot and were close on the heels of Francis Lindsay, young farmer near Lovettsville, Va., definitely identified as the nonchalant robber.

Frederick, Md., officers recovered the money after a thrilling chase through that city. While the officers were talking with three Hamilton men who had been in hot pursuit of the robber, they noticed a car speeding along an opposite street which answered the description of the hold-up man's car. They gave chase and both cars dashed madly through that city at 50 miles an hour. At Yellow Springs, 8 miles north of Frederick, the driver abandoned his car, fleeing on foot into the Catoctin Mountains.

When the officers drew up, they found a frightened and bewildered young woman in the abandoned car, and at her feet was a sack containing part of the bank's money and also the automatic revolver used in holding up Theodore Reid, cashier of the Hamilton bank.

The young woman, who is being held at Frederick, readily admitted she was the wife of Francis Lindsay, but disclaimed any knowledge of the bank robbery.

Since the man fled to the mountains without a gun or supplies, officers were confident his apprehension was only a matter of time.

The Hamilton bank was robbed shortly after noon yesterday by the lone robber through a well executed ruse. While Reid, who had been cashier of the bank only three days, and had assumed charge only yesterday, was busy winding up the day's business, the man strolled into the bank. Reid was alone in the bank at the time, his assistant, Miss Nina Flippo, having gone to lunch. As the man had been in the bank

BALTIMORE KILLER TAKEN IN GUN FIGHT

ADMITS DOUBLE CRIME

Baltimore, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—A Negro, said by police to have later confessed killing Reuben Heyman and attacking Mrs. Dorothy Burgess last night, was captured today at Luthersville, about 15 miles north of here, after a gun battle in which one policeman was wounded.

City police, traveling by automobile after learning that a man answering the description of the missing negro had bought a ticket for the Lutherville railroad station, beat the train which had already left Baltimore. When they reached the Lutherville station, the firing began.

The man shot Patrolman Kelly, of the Towson police force, in the finger and Kelly shot him, wounding him so seriously that physicians at the Mercy Hospital thought he would die.

Police said that as the negro, Alonzo Price, was being taken into the operating room of the hospital, he confessed the killing of Heyman and the assault on Mrs. Burgess.

Mrs. Burgess' attacker, after killing her companion and assaulting her, forced Mrs. Burgess to sit with him in an automobile while he took, what he said, was poison and told her his name, address and life history while waiting for death to come, she told Baltimore detectives today.

The man fled when headlights of another car appeared on the lonely road after they had sat for three-quarters of an hour, and the driver of the other machine brought her back to the city.

Mrs. Burgess tried to write the Negro's name and address on the back of a photograph of Heyman, her friend who was slain, but her fountain pen worked badly, she told Capt. Burns, of the detective bureau, before retracing in a police car the route she said Heyman had been forced to drive to the lonely spot where his body was found.

After checking the address, police began a State-wide search for Price, 35-year-old chauffeur and World War veteran, with a cork leg. His wife said he took a $50 war bonus and disappeared yesterday.

The man who assaulted her showed her a bottle marked poison, took a tablet from it and said, "I might as well meet my wife in heaven." Mrs. Burgess told the police.

Prosperity Campaign Gratifying to Hoover

Move to Increase Construction Is Bearing Fruit, Surveys of Country Assure President; Nearly Five Billion to Be Spent.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover said yesterday that the drive for increase in construction and improvement work to take up unemployment is showing most encouraging results, with indications that the undertakings will be larger in 1930 than in 1929.

His statement, made at the regular Friday press conference, was based upon surveys and reports from a number of State governors and the railway and public utilities industries which show a total contemplated expenditure of $4,700,000,000.

Complete returns from 16 States and partial returns from 13 others showed that the total value of the public works to be undertaken by those States and the counties and municipalities within them, together with Federal Government public works, would total $1,550,000,000.

In nearly all cases, the President said, the State, county and municipal expenditures would be larger than in the past year. Surveys are coming in daily to the Department of Commerce and are expected to be completed by mid-January.

Preliminary estimates of the railways for construction and betterments for 1930 were $1,050,000,000, and for the public utilities, including telephones, $2,100,000,000. Added to these figures will be those for the remainder of the States and cities and counties, for building construction generally and industrial and factory improvements, which latter now are under survey by the special business committee set up at the December conference held at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

One matter of gratification to officials was in reports made to the President by the steel companies that the drive already was showing in their orders, which now are beyond expectations of the companies.

The President's statement on the situation to date follows:

"Our drive for increase in construction and improvement work to take up unemployment is showing most encouraging results, and it looks as if the work undertaken will be larger for 1930 than for 1929.

"The Department of Commerce now has complete returns from the governors of 16 States covering public works to be undertaken in 1930 by the State, municipal and county authorities. They have partial returns from 13 more States. The total so far reported, and including the Federal Government, is about $1,550,000,000, and in nearly all cases larger than for 1929. The surveys are coming in daily and should be completed by mid-January.

"The preliminary estimate of the railways for construction and better-

Union Youth Tells Abduction Story

North Carolina Organizer Asserts Six Men Took Him Into Woods.

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Elbert Totherow, of Gastonia, 17-year-old organizer for the National Textile Workers Union, who, union officials here said yesterday, had been kidnaped at Lumberton, returned to Charlotte today and gave details of the alleged kidnaping.

The youth related that six men seized him at Lumberton, carried him 30 miles into the country and released him in a woods after threatening him with death if he returned to Lumberton, he said. Totherow asserted he would return to Lumberton next week. He had been engaged in organization work among employes of the Mansfield mill there.

Lumberton police said they learned the organizer checked out property yesterday morning at the hotel where he was registered.

Chief of Police Robert Barker, of Lumberton, said his officers had been unable to find any evidence to support Totherow's story.

Doran Announces 1930 Output of Alcohol Will Be Cut.

(Associated Press.)

More stringent prohibition enforcement policies were undertaken yesterday by the Justice and Treasury Departments as the Capital's controversy over the liquor situation continued to seethe.

The Department of Justice asked the Supreme Court to rule that when a person gives a bootlegger an order requiring transportation of the liquor, he is guilty of conspiracy with the bootlegger to violate the prohibition law.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced that an agreement had been entered into with the industrial alcohol manufacturers to reduce this year's output of alcohol by 15 per cent. Leaks of industrial alcohol have

Historic Church Passes For Municipal Center

Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Is Sold to Commission.

The days of the old Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church at John Marshall place and C street northwest, built in 1855, were numbered yesterday, when the District Commissioners completed purchase of the property for $190,000 under an agreement permitting the church to continue to occupy the premises until January 1, 1931.

This was one of four purchases effected for the municipal center yesterday, involving a total of 19,085 square feet acquired by the District at a cost of $257,766. These latest transactions bring the total spent thus far for municipal center land to $2,682,000 of the $3,000,000 already appropriated for the project by Congress.

Although the church dates back to 1855, it was not until after the Civil

Mitchell, superintendent of the House document folding room, stated later that they had thought they smelled the faint odor of smoke when they went out to dinner at 6:15 o'clock.

The flames were seen first by Mr. Heinberger as he was patrolling the grounds around the Capitol. Entering the building, he called Mr. Bass, who was patroling the rotunda floor. They armed themselves with fire extinguishers and fought their way as far as the door of the document room, but were unable to enter because of the dense smoke.

Artist Carried Out.

At the doorway they met Mr. Mitchell, who had returned from dinner and had gone to the document room, where he discovered the blaze and found Mr. Moberly, overcome, on the floor of the studio. Mr. Mitchell and Ralph G. Bray, a member of the Texas Citrus Fruit Growers Association, who had been in the offices of Representative Garner on the floor below, carried the artist to Mr. Garner's room, where he was treated by Dr. Calver.

Among the art works in the studio which were destroyed were ten portraits of judges of the Court of Claims, which Mr. Moberly had been retouching, and two models of the Capitol, one of these a duplicate of the original Garet mode' which is now in Spain on display at the Seville exposition.

More than 2 feet of water covered the floors of the studio and document room, pouring down the stairways to the corridors of lower floors despite the efforts of firemen to sweep it down the elevator shaft to avoid water damages to the offices of House members and to the Supreme Court rooms directly under the document room.

Firefighters Are Hampered.

Fire Chief George S. Watson was among the early arrivals at the scene, and took personal charge of directing the battle against the blaze. Extreme difficulty was experienced getting lines of hose up the narrow, winding stairways which led to the small door of the document room, and it was twenty minutes before water could be poured on the flames.

Ladders were flung up against the outside of the building, and up these were carried many additional lines of hose with which streams of water were played through the skylight roof of the studio. At 7:45 o'clock Chief Watson declared the fire to be out.

All but twelve fire companies had been relieved and sent back to await possible other calls at 7:33 o'clock, while the remaining companies continued to pour water into the scene of the blaze to prevent the possibility that flames might break out from smoldering papers in the document room.

White House Sees Flames.

Fed by the oils and paints in the artist's studio, the blaze could be seen as far away as the White House, more than a mile away up Pennsylvania avenue, as the flames shot high in the air around the glistening white dome of the Capitol.

Throughout the fire a huge United States flag waved gayly in the breeze while the flames licked at its staff, set in the roof at the edge of the skylight which covers the studio. And when the last of the engine companies left the scene, hours after sundown, the flag still flapped above the ruins.

Flares Add to Excitement.

Within a few minutes after the arrival of the first pieces of fire-fighting apparatus the excitement was intensified by dozens of brilliant calcium flares, set off by almost a score of movie newsreel photographers, while the dull booms of flashlights exploded by newspaper photographers echoed loudly above the shouts of the firemen.

Although the floor of the rotunda and the corridors were flooded and considerable damage is believed to have been done by water in offices on the third floor directly under the blaze, the figures in Statuary Hall and the numerous oil paintings in the corridors were unharmed.

High tribute was paid by Mr. Lynn to the Fire Department for its success in combating the flames, as it was believed that the loss might have been much more serious if a number of old documents dating back to the time of the Thirty-second Congress, also stored in a farther corner of the document room, had been burned.

In reaching the blaze the firemen were forced to smash in a locked revolving door at the east entrance, and the crowds of spectators scrambled to pick up pieces of the broken glass for souvenirs.

CAPITOL FIRE WORST SINCE 1814 BURNING

Structure Was Rebuilt After British Invasion in War of 1812.

VARIOUS ADDITIONS MADE

The fire which occurred in the Capitol last night was confined entirely to the central building, which dates back from 1818, but which was not completed until 1827. Last night's fire was the most serious since the British invaded Washington in 1814 and destroyed the original Capitol.

From time to time fires have occurred in the historic building, the most serious being the destruction of the original.

The British troops, commanded by Gen. Ross, arrived in Washington August 21, 1814. Three days later a detachment under Admiral Cockburn and Gen. Ross marched into the wing used by the House of Representatives. Cockburn, in mockery, was escorted to the Speaker's chair, and the decision was reached to fire the building.

Books Provide Fuel.

A search was made for combustible material. All the books and pictures of the Congressional Library were piled in heaps upon the floor and a lighted torch was applied. The flames spread quickly. Pillars in the halls were cracked and broken by the troops and in the fire the interior of the building was reduced to ashes.

After the rebuilding of the Capitol, wings were added, and later an extension of the wings begun. The great iron dome, which has been pictured the world over as symbolical in part of the Government of the United States, was not completed until the close of the Civil War. Flames from the fire last night shot through skylights and played about the dome, which is 287 feet in height.

Directly under the document storeroom and the architect's studio is the Supreme Court room, the scene of many historic and stirring debates.

History Made Within Its Walls.

The House of Representatives used the section from 1808 until 1814, and then from 1817 until December 16, 1857, and during the period many matters of national importance were discussed. It was here that Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Randolph and many others gained reputations for statesmanship, and made the walls ring with their fiery eloquence. In this section many scenes of fierce wrangling and displays of sectional feelings were enacted.

The design of the original building was made by Dr. William Thornton and his work was carried on in later extensions and additions by Latrobe and Bulfinch. Maj. l'Enfant, in his plan of the Capital, gave the name "Capitol" to the building intended for the national legislature. The hill, because of its central location, was chosen as the site.

Work on the Capitol was begun and on September 18, 1793, George Washington laid the cornerstone. James Hoban directed the construction of the next addition, which was then the north wing.

Delay in Rebuilding.

After the burning of the Capitol in 1814, Congress wrangled for a long time over the question of rebuilding. Latrobe was given the commission to rebuild the structure. Latrobe was the real designer of the central building as it stands. He started to restore the Capitol, but resigned before the work was completed, and Charles Bulfinch, a Boston architect, took his place. In 1827 the building was finished.

At that time it had cost $2,433,814. It was 352 feet long and 121 feet wide. It is now 751 feet long and covers 3½ acres.

Until 1851, nothing of consequence was done to the exterior of the Capitol. Congress then decided to build wings north and south in which both houses could be better accomodated. In July, 1851, the cornerstone of the south extension was laid by President Fillmore. Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, delivered the oration.

Thomas U. Walter, of Philadelphia, designed the plans for the extensions and for the dome. Sixteen years were required before the work was finished. Nearly $10,000,000 was expended.

Dome Is Heightened.

The lengthening of the dimensions required a corresponding heightening of the dome, which was completed in 1863. The statue of Freedom was then lifted into its place.

Walter, however, foresaw a future need of still further extension and had drawn plans for it while the other work was going on.

In the spring of 1902 Congress authorized the execution of these plans at an expenditure of two and a half million dollars. The work was completed in 1903 under the supervision of the Federal architect. As it now stands, the Capitol cost $16,000,000.

Massive bronze doors, depicting events famous in the country's history, grace the three main entrances on the east front. In the rotunda, under the dome, are many priceless historical paintings and in statuary hall is an assemblage of portrait statues, the gifts of the various States.

The Supreme Court occupies a room in the central building; the Senate chamber is in the north wing, and the House of Representatives in the south wing.

FLAME-SWEPT INTERIOR OF CAPITOL STUDIO

Origin of Capitol Fire In Studio of Painter

The fire in the Capitol last night originated in the studio occupied by Carl Moberly, 61-year-old artist who has been engaged in restoring various works of art in the Capitol.

Moberly, who has been the Capitol artist for more than 25 years and who would have been eligible for retirement next August, was found unconscious on the floor of the studio by Sidney Mitchell, superintendent of the House document folding room, and taken to the rooms of Representative John E. Garner, of Texas, on the floor below. After treatment by Dr. George W. Calver, naval physician assigned to the House, who said Moberly was "in such condition that anything he might say as to the origin of the fire could not be depended upon," the artist was taken to Casualty Hospital for further treatment.

The artist, whose present home is at Mount Ida, Va., came here from Frederick, Md., about 30 years ago. His work, especially in redressing paintings, has won the appreciation of artists and decorators from many parts of the world who have visited the Capitol especially to see his accomplishments.

Among the many historic paintings he has restored on the walls of the rotunda and the House and Senate chambers are several pieces by Constantino Brumidi, the celebrated Italian master.

Moberly was married last year, after being a bachelor for almost 60 years.

CLEAR TARIFF TRACK, IS REPUBLICAN AIM

ALL FACTIONS IN ACCORD

(Associated Press.)

United support by Senate Republicans of the pledge to give the long pending tariff bill undisputed right of way henceforth will be asked at a party conference on Monday which was called yesterday by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader.

Already Senate leaders of all factions have given their pledge that the tariff would be kept constantly before the Senate until disposed of. It appeared certain that a final drive will be opened on Monday for completion of this legislation.

Leaders of the Democratic-Republican independent coalition, which has a majority in the Senate in the tariff struggle, demanded before the Christmas recess that hereafter nothing be considered by the Senate except the tariff.

Watson Pledges Support.

Senator Watson gave his pledge to that program and in his anxiety to urge support for this procedure by the Republicans is seen also a determination by President Hoover that the tariff bill be enacted.

The new Republican move for final disposition of the tariff comes soon after pronouncements by some of the Republican regulars that the tariff bill is "dead."

Despite the wide disparity between the bill being written by the senate coalition for agriculture and the measure of the Republican House giving general increases in tariff rates, apparently the administration is going to seek a solution and the enactment of a bill.

Bill Only Half Completed.

The tariff bill was received last June by the Senate but consideration of it has only been about half completed.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, believes it can not be sent to conference with the House before February 15.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, and Senators Borah, of Idaho, and La Follette, of Wisconsin, leaders of the Republican Independents, all have demanded that nothing except the tariff be considered until after its disposal.

Hoover Takes Especial Interest as Fire Rages

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover, whose personal experience with fires was refreshed last week by the blaze in his own offices at the White House, took an especial interest in the conflagration last night at the Capitol.

He instructed one of the White House aids to get the details. The telephone operator at the Capitol, while being besieged with calls from senators and representatives, connected the White House with the office of Representative Garner, of Texas, near to the fire.

President Hoover yesterday set at rest reports that a new executive office building would be constructed, by announcing that it is the intention to repair the offices destroyed by fire on Christmas Eve and make them as fully fireproof as possible.

A number of members of Congress and others, he said, have suggested that new and more imposing executive offices should be erected on some other site. This is a matter, he added, that will require two or three years for the development of thought and design.

He expressed more interest in expediting erection of the departmental buildings, but the time will undoubtedly come, he said, when a larger and more dignified executive office should be erected.

More Than Coincidence, Vandenberg Declares

Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, hurried from his dinner to the Capitol when he learned of the fire.

"This must be more than a coincidence," the senator remarked to a friend, discussing the Christmas Eve blaze at the White House and the Capitol fire.

Associates Deny Will Hays to Wed

Movie Czar Himself Has No Comment on Report of Engagement.

New York, Jan. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Will H. Hays, film czar, is not contemplating marriage with Mrs. Virginia Lake, of Indianapolis, Ind., it was reliably learned today from people very close to the head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc. Mrs. Lake is a divorcee and the daughter of Willard S. and Jessie L. Spring, of Indianapolis.

Mr. Hays and Mrs. Spring refused to deny or affirm the report. Mrs. Lake could not be reached today.

Mr. Hays was divorced last year from Mrs. Helen Thomas Hays, whom he married in 1902. Incompatibility was charged in the suit which was not contested. It was filed April 19, 1929, and was granted in June. The custody of William Harrison Hays, jr., their only child, was granted to Mr. Hays.

Mob Attempts to Reach Two Alleged Swindlers

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Infuriated by the sight of the men they accuse of robbing them of their life savings, about 100 men and women today participated in a demonstration outside Jefferson Market Court, where two former officials of the Columbia Finance Corporation were being arraigned on a charge of misappropriation of funds.

The two men, Solomon Cruso, 38, and Samuel Schuckman, were released in $25,000 bail each today. Although neither was harmed by the group, another official of the company who was present in the court corridor was scratched and mauled by the crowd before police coull rescue him.

Rail Holding Companies May Be Investigated

Investigation of railroad holding companies by the House interstate commerce committee will be proposed to that committee next week by Chairman Parker.

Mr. Parker announced yesterday that he was preparing a resolution to be introduced Monday calling for an investigation into the holding companies by his group as a special committee. Although he has not completed plans to bring the matter before the committee, he said it was on the basis of the recent report on railroad consolidation made by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Hoover Announces Better Indian Law

Increase of $3,000,000 in Budget to Be Asked of Congress.

(Associated Press.)

The Indian Bureau is prepared to recommend to Congress a number of changes in the laws bearing on Indian affairs.

President Hoover said yesterday these would be designed to assure better administration of large properties owned by the Indians and to correct many things in the administration of these properties in a way to encourage Indian citizenship.

"We have presented to Congress," he added, "a request for an increased appropriation of some $3,000,000 for next year's budget, and in the meantime we have submitted an estimate in the deficiency bill for some increase for the balance of this year."

The purposes of those increases, the President said, are mainly to build up the education and health facilities, to change the direction of educational work and to develop the industrial improvement of the Indians.

Board Seeks Cause Of Saratoga Blaze

Naval Court to Forward Results of Inquiry to Washington.

San Pedro, Calif., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—The cause of a fire which flamed from a turpentine pot on an officers' gig, lashed to the side of the U. S. S. Saratoga, gigantic naval airplane carrier, bringing death to two sailors, severely burning four others, was sought today by aids of a naval court of inquiry.

Naval authorities said their report on the accident, which also destroyed the gig, valued at $25,000, and scorched the steel sides of the Saratoga, would be forwarded to superiors at Washington for such announcement as they might see fit to make.

The men who died were Matthew Lavielle, 22, of Scehnectady, N. Y., and Vincent Lalor, 29, of Brooklyn. The injured are George Febrey, 19, Annapolis, Md.; Henry Kenfield, 24, Hampton, Conn.; B. J. Morton and Albert Houston, 20, Centralia, Wash.

The men were in the gig working on the motor, oil refuse from which had covered the surrounding waters. Lavielle first saw the flaming turpentine pot and, with Febrey's aid, he threw it overboard. The oil on the water was ignited and all aboard leaped for their lives. It was believed Lavielle and Lalor died when they came to the surface and inhaled flames. The others were rescued by a water taxi.

TWO PARTIES SHOW VARYING FORTUNES

G. O. P. Reports Balance of $136,000 as Democrats Cut Obligations.

LEAGUE TELLS CONDITION

(Associated Press.)

Congress learned that the Republican national committee has a balance of $136,363 and the Democratic national committee has outstanding obligations of $449,686, in reports made yesterday to William Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives.

In the documents filed in accordance with law, the Antisaloon League also reported in relation to political expenditures and said there was nothing in its treasury for that purpose. Edward B. Dunford, treasurer of the league, explained last night that its committee, which had functioned during the last presidential campaign, had been disbanded when there was no reason for its continuance and that hence no funds such as were required to be reported were on hand.

The statement of James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic committee, showed the Democrats had reduced their obligations from $1,600,000 since December 31, 1928, after the Hoover-Smith presidential campaign, to $449,686 on December 31, 1929. The cash on hand as the year ended totaled $15,404.

During the last year, receipts of the Democratic committee amounted to $1,462,203 and the expenditures to $1,446,798. The year previous the Democrats received $5,444,958, including loans amounting to $1,600,000 and expended $5,342,348.

Of the present outstanding obligation, $375,000 is owed to the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, and $70,000 to John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee, for loans. The remainder is owed for furnishings of the Washington office and for interest.

The report of J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, showed no outstanding obligations. The receipts for the year amounted to $49,411 and the expenditures totaled $198,685.

Contributions Reach $6,500,000.

During the campaign year, 1928, contributions to the Republican committee amounted to $6,541,748 and expenditures to $6,256,111.

The Antisaloon League report, filed by Edward B. Dunford, treasurer, showed campaign expenditures and receipts for 1929 each to amount to $11,927, the expenditures including $2,541 in campaign contributions which were transferred to the general fund of the organization.

The largest contribution to the Democratic fund in the last quarter of 1929 came from the Texas State Democratic Executive Committee and amounted to $3,419. The second largest donation was $2,500 from Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, of Middleburg, Va., and the third largest was $100 from Mrs. F. Winn and friends, of Philadelphia.

Other Gifts Grouped.

The remainder of the contributions were grouped with those giving less than $100 each and were not carried individually. The other contributors were announced in quarterly reports.

Among contributors to the Antisaloon League fund were James M. Gamble, Cincinnati, $300; William Albert Harbison, New York, $250; H. W. Eakins, Springfield, Ohio, $120, and $8,515 in contributions of $100 or less.

The report showed that some funds were transferred to the Antisaloon League of Michigan, Nebraska, and Kentucky for miscellaneous purposes.

Two Feared Dead As Hotel Blazes

Fire Follows Explosion in the Marquery, New York; Woman's Heart Fails.

New York, Jan. 2 (A.P.).—Fire, preceded by an explosion, tonight drove guests from the fashionable Hotel Marguery on Park avenue. One woman, fleeing from the building, was reported to have collapsed on the street and died of a heart attack.

Later reports said that an unidentified man had been killed in an elevator during the rush of guests for the street.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Louis Lichtenheim. The explosion, which occurred in the basement and subbasement of the hotel's annex, which has an entrance on Madison avenue, was followed by flames, which first consumed a quantity of kindling in the basement and then shot up the air and elevator shafts of the building to the roof.

Large Meteor Flashes Out Of Sky to Light Cleveland

Western Pennsylvania and Ontario Also Report Seeing Visitor From Outer Space Fall to Earth in Flaming Mass; Loud Noise Heard.

Cleveland, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—The startling appearance of a large meteor diving earthward in a brilliant stream of fire was witnessed early today by hundreds of persons in northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. So far as could be ascertained tonight, the meteor burned itself out while passing through the earth's outer atmosphere and did not hit the ground.

At Greenville, Pa., however, the appearance of the meteor was accompanied by a detonation and distant rumble, which mdae it a possibility that a part of the flaming mass reached the earth. Witnesses of the phenomenon at Harrisville, Pa., said its light was so brilliant that they could not ascertain the direction it came from. At Norwalk, Ohio, the flaming body was described as colored both red and blue.

Clevelanders said the meteor appeared between 5:30 and 5:45 a. m. and that it lighted the city brilliantly.

Chatham, Ontario, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Illuminating the city and district with dazzling brilliance, a meteor flashed through the heavens here just before dawn and disappeared in the west.

The phenomenon was seen by a few clerks of the local postoffice as they were going to work. They stated that it appeared out of the east and, traveling due west, was gone in an instant.

FOUR PERSONS HURT AS FERRY SINKS TUG

Municipal Craft, Off Its Course in New York Fog, Crushes Towboat.

SEVERAL ARE RESCUED

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Groping about in a dense fog, two miles off her course, the municipal ferry William R. Hearst rammed and sank the tug Mutual today at Beard's dry dock, Brooklyn.

Eighteen men were thrown into the water, and four of them, members of the tug's crew, who were dragged down as she was crushed between the ferry and the breakwater, were badly injured.

Two hundred passengers aboard the ferry became frightened but were quieted by the crew before any one was injured.

The Mutual and several other tugs had crept up to the breakwater through the fog and tied up there to wait until they could see their way out. Suddenly the big ferry loomed up and there was a crash.

Caught between the ferry and the breakwater, the little tug was crushed and sank, carrying down her captain, Harry Bass, and his crew of seven. The impact also threw 10 men who were standing on the breakwater into the water.

The ferry turned on her big searchlights and threw out lifelines to the Mutual's crew, the others in the water having managed to scramble back onto the breakwater without assistance.

Dazed and hurt in the collision, Capt. Bass failed to grasp a line and drifted out of reach. Capt. Bennett, of the tug Dalzellite, which was tied up alongside the Mutual, leaped into the water, swam over, and brought him ashore unconscious. He and three members of his crew, who also were seriously injured, were taken to a hospital.

MAIL LINE PROTEST UNDER ADVISEMENT

ASKS BIDS BE DEFERRED

(Associated Press.)

A protest by J. E. Sheedy, president of the United States Steamship Lines, against awarding of mail contracts to the Kermit Roosevelt Steamship Line was taken under advisement yesterday by a committee of postoffice, commerce, Shipping Board and Navy representatives after a hearing before Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover.

Sheedy contended that the proposed Roosevelt line between Baltimore and Hamburg would cut in heavily on traffic and cargo business of the United States Steamship Lines operating out of New York. He said this would be contrary to the protection agreement under which his company had purchased its vessels from the United States Shipping Board, and on the basis of which it had made heavy investment in terminals abroad.

He therefore asked that advertising for mail carrying bids be deferred. In so doing he emphasized that he did not take the position that Baltimore and Hampton roads were not entitled to a service to Hamburg. He said his own company had suggested such a service last June and was now working toward it.

Vice President John Franklin, of the Roosevelt Line, denied that the proposed service would be in competition with United States Lines out of New York. He said they would need all their vessels to carry the commerce out of Baltimore and Hampton Roads.

Representative Bland, of Virginia, appearing for Newport News; Representative Lankford, of Virginia, for Norfolk, and G. H. Pouder for the Baltimore Association of Commerce, all asked early action looking toward the commercial development of those ports, through the establishment of a modern steamship line with Baltimore as terminal.

The robber told the cashier that he had given his little daughter a $2.50 gold piece and his son also wanted one. Reid said he paid no attention to that statement and continued his work. Finally the man said: "How about that gold piece? Are you going to let me have it?"

Reid answered, "Sure I will let you have it. I did not know you wanted it.' Leaving his work he went into the vault to get the money which was underneath a shelf. When he looked around the man had him covered with an automatic revolver.

"You get under that shelf,' he said.

"All right," Reid answered, "but you had better hurry before someone comes in."

The yeggmen scooped up all the money in the vault and in the cash drawer, and placed it in some boxes that were in the vault.

While he was doing this, Reid jested with the robber, saying, "Say, this is pretty tough on me; I have just taken over this job."

"It's tough on me, too," the man answered. "Times are pretty hard."

After removing the boxes from the vault the robber closed and locked the gate to the vault. He started to close the door, too, but was unable to do so because of the trap-flooring across the doorway.

Reid also suggested that it was not necessary to close the door, so the man left with the boxes under his arm. He had no more than closed the bank door when Reid liberated himself and dashed out, shouting that he had been robbed. Despite his alarm, however, the man did not hurry particularly, and the few pedestrians on the village street failed to comprehend his cries. The man walked about a block to the postoffice, where his car was parked, got into it and fled.

In a few minutes Reid's alarm became a reality to those on the street, and G. E. Warner, a garageman, and two other men jumped into Reid's car and started in pursuit. Meanwhile a lookout was broadcast, and E. S. Adrian, sheriff of Loudoun County, and his men joined in the pursuit.

Robber Halted by Bridge Keeper.

At Brunswick, Md., the robber was halted by the bridge keeper and informed that he answered the description of the Hamilton Bank thief. The bridgeman let him go, however, thinking he had no authority to make an arrest.

Sheriff Adrian and his men pressed on in hot pursuit until they got to Hagerstown. They turned back there after they had been convinced as to the robber's identity. They stated upon their return to Leesburg, county seat of Loudoun County, that Lindsay was the robber and declared he was being trailed by his father, mother and young wife in another car. They also predicted that Lindsay was heading toward Walkersville, Md., the former home of his wife.

Officers at Frederick stated that Lindsay's wife was the daughter of Thomas Cramer, a prominent farmer living near Frederick. She was said to be only 17 years of age and to have told the officers that her husband picked her up near Hamilton and that she knew nothing about the bank robbery.

Morning Visit Described.

When the robber was in the bank during the morning, Reid said he talked with him for some time. The man said he was interested in starting a Christmas savings account for his wife. In answer to Reid's question about where he lived, the man said he lived in Washington, but planned to move to Hamilton. He also said he planned to live with William Francis, a farmer living near that town.

Later Reid expressed the belief that the man was contemplating the robbery at that time and was building up his "nerve." After the robbery, J. J. Cooley, cashier of the Round Hill National Bank, also reported that a man answering the robber's description had been in his bank Thursday and had made inquiries concerning a Christmas savings account.

As the man was unmasked, Reid was able to give a definite description of him. He said the robber was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighed about 160 pounds. He wore a gray overcoat and cap, and was of a ruddy complexion.

Village Excited by Robbery.

The little village of Hamilton, nestled in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, was in a high state of excitement following the bold robbery. It was the talk of the town and occasion for much repartee. "Theo," as Reid is familiarly known to all, was unable to finish his day's work at the bank because of the crowd which constantly flocked into the little building, composed of a small room with a cage open at both sides, a small vault and directors' room.

Because of a $1,860 shipment of national bank notes from the United States Treasury and some surplus money on hand, there was a total of $4,501.16 in the bank whereas about only $2,500 is usually kept on hand. The bank notes, which came in six strips, had been cut apart Thursday night.

Practically all of the money taken by the robber was in the bank's own $10 notes. The man scooped up all the wrapped coin, except a few nicels. This loot consisted ob about $50 in half-dollars, $100 in quarters, $50 in dimes, and $40 in pennies. He left only the nickels and the change on the counter. He also took the postoffice's surplus supplies, consisting of about $200 in stamps and three money order pads.

Reid Is Experienced Banker.

Although Reid, who has been in the insurance business at Leesburg for several years, had been officially cashier of the bank since Monday, yesterday was the first day he had been in sole charge. J. W. Donough, former cashier of the bank, who resigned to become cashier of the Mount Jackson National Bank, had remained with him during the intervening days. Yesterday Donough was in Alexandria to attend to some personal business, but planned to return in time to help wind up the day's business.

Reid, however, is an experienced banker, having been associated with the Purcellville National Bank, the Round Hill National Bank and the Chase National Bank of New York for considerable periods.

The Farmers & Merchants Bank, the only one in Hamilton, was organized in 1908. It has a capital of $25,000 and a $12,500 surplus. Henry B. Taylor is its president, and most of the stock is owned by Hamilton citizens.

Loot Recovered by Posse.

The money recovered in the bandit's car was returned to Hamilton by Roy Flippo, director of the bank, and the two other members of the three-man posse that pursued the robber into Maryland.

It was stated at Hamilton that young Lindsay was the son of Wilbur Lindsay, prominent Loudoun County farmer, and former deputy sheriff. It also was stated that the robber and his wife had been living with her people at Walkersville, but had come to his father's home on New Year's Eve.

Another report had it that Lindsay had told his wife to meet him near Hamilton yesterday afternoon, and they would leave for Florida.

PROSPERITY DRIVE RESULTS PROVE PLEASING TO HOOVER

ments for 1930 was $1,050,000,000, and for the public utilities, $2,100,000,000, including the telephones.

"The total of these items so far is $4,700,000,000. This does not include the balance of the State, municipal and county work, nor the building construction, nor the industrial and factory improvements, which latter are now under survey by the special business committee.

"The steel companies informed me this morning that the effect of the drive is already showing in their orders which are beyond their expectations."

The President is pleased with the results which have attended the initiation of the drive by him in the calling of a series of conferences at the White House in November after the crash in Wall street prices.

21 Men Carry On Work.

The work thus initiated is being carried forward by an executive committee of 21 business leaders, which gathered early last month. This committee will meet here between January 20 and 25 to consider, from a general viewpoint, further steps that may be taken to maintain national business equilibrium.

A statement yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said that business as reflected in reports received from members of the national business survey conference committee disclosed no loss of the momentum it had on December 5, and indicated that plans were being made with confidence to meet the problems of 1930.

"Since the conference met on December 5 there has been an absence of developments which would justify concern," the statement said. "The developments of this four-week period have been calculated to increase confidence as to what lies ahead.

Normal Business Expected.

"On the side of production, industry generally shows a disposition to base its programs on anticipated normal business activities during the new year.

"In the field of distribution the reports reveal an active end-of-the-year season which closes with inventories low and the usual spring pick-up expected.

"Staple lines of consumer goods maintained reasonably normal levels and in some cases show advances. Construction and related supply and equipment industries wait to some extent upon the arrangement of credit facilities but look forward to expanding building and improvement programs with the arrival of favorable conditions."

M'PHERSON JURORS SCORED BY COLLINS

Cared Nothing for Law, Says Assistant Prosecutor in Bungling Testimony.

WOULDN'T LISTEN TO HIM

The July grand jury was led by a group who cared nothing about the law or the testimony of witnesses before it, William H. Collins, assistant United States district attorney, told the extraordinary police trial board yesterday at the trial of Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly for bungling the police investigation of the death of Mrs. Virginia McPherson.

Merritt O. Chance, foreman of the jury, was so determined to indict Robert A. McPherson, jr., for the murder of his wife, Mr. Collins testified, that he prepared the indictment before the end of the first day of the jury's investigation of the woman's death.

"The law didn't mean anything to that group," Collins said, "and every time you tried to tell them anything about the law it simply meant an antagonism which would work against them doing what they should do.

Warned of Alien Testimony.

"I told them that they should not let Policeman Robert J. Allen sum up the testimony they had heard from other witnesses. I told them why. I told them that Allen could not know everything which had been testified to before the jury and that the jury must be the sole judge of the evidence. I told them that if they let Allen make a closing speech that would vitiate anything they might do. I told them that if they didn't believe me that that was the law they could ask the court."

"But you didn't report this improper attitude and actions to the court yourself, did you?" questioned Robert E. Lynch, prosecutor.

"I certainly did. I reported it to two of the judges of the Supreme Court."

"But you didn't control the jury and prevent them from doing improper things?" queried Mr. Lynch.

Could Not Influence Them.

"There are limits beyond which a prosecuting attorney can not go. I couldn't control the jury. It would not have been proper for me to do so. I did tell them that not only they should not listen to a closing speech by Allen but that they should not even listen to a speech from me."

Mr. Collins took the witness stand at the opening of the afternoon session. His eyes were protected by black glasses. He has been ill and is under the care of physicians for his eyes and the window shades of the trial room were drawn to protect him from bright sunlight. He denounced the manner in which the grand jury had treated young McPherson when he had voluntarily appeared before them and signed a waiver of immunity so that the jury might question him.

"It was the most brutal and coldblooded proposition I ever hope to witness," Collins said.

"You believed him innocent, didn't you?" questioned Lynch.

Still Believes Him Innocent.

"It would have been brutal if he had been guilty as sin. I believed him innocent and I still believe he is innocent and there has not been developed by any one a single iota of evidence to show he is not innocent. If what was done to McPherson by the grand jury had been done at police headquarters any confession which might have been got would have been thrown out of court. And you know it. It was utterly illegal."

"You have some feeling in this matter, haven't you?"

"Yes, and I think I am entitled to have some feeling. I feel that I and two other reputable public officials have had a lying report filed against us and at the same time an innocent man was indicted for murder."

Foreman Chance, Mr. Collins said, had been hypocritical. Mr. Chance had shaken hands with him and expressed friendship after the jury had given him a rising vote of thanks and commendation for his fair and impartial aid in the inquiry, but immediately he left the room Mr. Chance took from his pocket the special critical report and had it adopted by the grand jury.

Another Juror Testifies.

George M. Hall, another member of the grand jury, testifying earlier in the day, had repeated the testimony of jurors who had preceded him, flatly contradicting statements which had been made under oath by Mr. Chance earlier in the trial. Mr. Hall, too, declared that the special report condemning Messrs. Shelby, Kelly and Collins had been read by Mr. Chance, who declared it adopted without discussion.

Under questioning, Mr. Hall said that when Mr. Chance had read the report he called on jurors in favor of it to raise their hands. When he declared the report adopted one juror asked what was the vote. Mr. Chance said seventeen had voted for the report, according to Mr. Hall, who said that he and other jurors did not know whether that was correct because it all had been done so hurriedly. Much the same story had been told by preceding jurors who had testified at the trial.

Mr. Collins spiked one criticism of the police investigation, disclosing that experts of the Public Health Service had been called on to analyze the smear of blood which had been found on the McPherson bathroom floor, but the blood had dried at the time the body of Mrs. McPherson was discovered and a detailed analysis could not be made.

WATSON ASKS BOARD TO SET GRAIN POLICY

Republican Senate Leader Seeks Formal Statement on Elevator Plans.

EXPRESSES NO OPINION

(Associated Press.)

The controversial grain corporation program of the Federal Farm Board drew the attention yesterday of Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, who suggested a formal announcement of policy by the board.

Returning from Indiana, where he received inquiries concerning the board's program, Senator Watson said he would suggest to Chairman McNary, of the Senate agriculture committee, that members of the board be invited to discuss their program with the committee with a view to a determination of its policies.

The Republican leader expressed no opinion on the board's program. He merely proposed that it give a more definite pronouncement of its intentions, particularly with respect to whether it intends to take over existing grain elevator facilities in connection with its national grain corporation program.

Among those with whom he conferred in Indiana, Senator Watson mentioned John C. Shaffer, publisher of several newspapers in the Midwest and a grain grower. The senator said he also expected to confer here soon with W. H. Settle, of Indiana, who has been active in the organization of the national grain corporation under the farm board. Senator Watson said he thought it would be well for the farm board to outline its intentions on the question of purchasing grain, but did not express any views as to the position the board should take.

Museum Endowed By Mrs. Whitney

New York, Jan. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney announced today that she had decided to found a museum, to be devoted exclusively to American fine art and to be endowed solely by her, to be known as the Whitney Museum of American Art.

It will open next autumn, with a nucleus of 400 paintings, in temporary quarters on West Eighth street, this city, which are being remodeled to include nine galleries. The museum will be housed in the studio in which Mrs. Whitney, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, has done the work which won her recognition as one of America's foremost sculptors, and in the adjoining building until last year were carried on the activities of the Whitney Studio Club, which gave to many young artists the first showing that brought them to public attention.

Mrs. Whitney's announcement gave no indication of the amount with which she intended to endow the institution, but indicated that as soon as the temporary museum is opened she will turn her attention to planning a permanent museum at a location not yet selected.

ond Precinct, that he "didn't fire a shot."

"All I know is that several shots were fired," he said. "Then one of the fellows handed me a pistol."

Sharton was shot in the right shoulder and several times in the chest. His condition was reported to be critical after he had been removed to Gallinger Hospital.

A search was being made for the other two confusion who escaped in the confusion late last night, but police put little credence in the denial of Wharton that he shot down the policeman. The other two men are known.

Neighborhood in Uproar.

The colored neighborhood in the vicinity was in an uproar following the gun battle. Several detectives from police headquarters were on hand attempting to quiet them.

The trio of Negroes are said to have moved to the neighborhood a few weeks ago from Georgetown and have police records, but residents of the Logans court section declared that the men were strangers to them.

Policeman Hughes is married and has a 7-year-old daughter, Mary Ethel.

The stolen automobile was declared to be the property of Henry Jacobs, 3630 O street northwest. Police were checking late last night.

23 SUSPECTS FACE DRUG INDICTMENTS

Three in Group Accused of Being Leaders in Big Narcotic Rings.

JURY LAUDS U. S. AGENTS

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Three leaders and twenty members of three alleged narcotic rings were charged with violation of the narcotic laws in indictments handed up today by a Federal grand jury.

The indictments were the result of a recent investigation by Federal narcotic agents which culminated in a raid on a Harlem night club, where fifteen men were arrested.

Five open indictments were returned against the fifteen and three sealed indictments were handed up naming eight additional men. Investigators said the eight were not of any special prominence in the illicit drug trade.

Louis Saccarona and his brother, Frank, alleged leaders of the Harlem and Saccarona narcotic rings, and Joseph Gialelli, reputed Greenwich Village narcotic ring leader, were named in the open indictments. They, with their twenty alleged followers, were charged with violation of the Harrison drug act, the Miller-Jones export and import narcotic act and with conspiracy to violate both acts.

The grand jury, in handing up the indictments to Judge Henry W. Goddard, praised the work of the Federal narcotic agents who staged the raid last Saturday night that netted fifteen of the defendants.

Assistant United States Attorney John M. Blake announced that the Federal investigation had not been completed and would be continued by the January grand jury.

The narcotic agents, headed by Ralph Oyler, were brought here from other cities and worked several weeks collecting evidence.

CAYTON'S REMARKS ASSAILED BY RABBI

Figures Are Quoted to Prove Jewish People Among Most Law-Abiding.

DEPLORES JUDGE'S TALK

"Judge Cayton, desiring to show that all was not well in Israel in America, has written an indictment which consigns his people to the gutter of undesirability. If the congressional committee on immigration, taking his statements at their full value, introduces legislation to tighten the screws upon the entrance of immigrants to our country from East European lands, the judge can rejoice in his final triumph of reforming and Maccabean zeal."

Speaking of the antisocial behavior now seemingly overwhelming the country, Dr. Simon said, "I understand that this is an American crime wave, born out of conditions in our essentially American life, aggravated by increasing types of legislation and regulation, and a thousandfold 'thou shall nots.'

"I have known of epidemics of crime due to unemployment, suicidal suggestiveness and intense heat, but I have not known that there was an epidemic of this kind breaking out, more or less uniformly all over the land, which might be denominated 'Jewish.' I have nowhere heard that any one had the hardihood or the coldness to speak of a Catholic or a Protestant crime wave, but I have lived to know a young Jew, stepping out of his position on a municipal bench, to act as a lay preacher in a pulpit, discovering what he has now christened the 'Jewish crime wave.'

Criminal Percentage Low.

Demanding the facts, Dr. Simon offered his hearers quite an interesting set of figures. "There was a time, we are told, when a prison did not harbor a Jewish criminal in Washington. The fact remains that there was also a time when there were no Jews in Washington. When I came to Washington a quarter of a century ago, there were in a Jewish population of 5,000 some offenders born in the Jewish fold whose names were on the police docket.

"But why get excited over it? I declare before you today that with our present Jewish population of 15,000, or 3 per cent of the Washington community population, the percentage of Jewish delinquency is far below what its population ratio would expect."

Stating that when he wished to ascertain the real effect of a crime wave that he sought out the Juvinile Court records, Dr. Simon declared that the court's records showed that in 1914 there were 852 children before it and in 1929 the figure had mounted to 1,051. The number of Jewish children who came officially before the court in 1914 was 31 and there has been a gradual decrease in the number from year to year, until in 1929 but 14 appeared in the court.

Juvenile Delinquency Decreases.

"In other words," stated Dr. Simon, "the so-called Jewish juvenile delinquency is scarcely one-half of 1 per cent. In the National Training School for Boys, out of a total of 495 there are today but three of our faith. Despite the trebling of the Jewish population, juvenile delinquency among our people has impressively decreased."

Dr. Simon quoted statistics bearing on New York City and State. "In the State prisons of New York, where the Jewish State population would justify a 16.1 per cent of criminality, the Jewish percentage was actually 10.4 per cent. In the penal institutions of the city of New York, where the Jewish city population would call for 27 per cent proportion of criminality, according to its population, we actually find that there was but 19.3 per cent Jewish offenders."

He further pointed out that in 1928 there were received in Atlanta Penitentiary 2,621 persons, 149 of whom were Jews; in Leavenworth, 70 out of a total of 2,581; at McNeil Island, 12 out of a total of 655, and at the Chillicothe Reformatory for persons between the ages of 17 and 30, 11 of the 490 were Jewish.

Referring to Judge Cayton's remark that "it is idle to say that it (the Jewish crime wave) is due to postwar let-down in morals, it is futile to say that it is due to prohibition, for that excuse has been overworked already," Dr. Simon said:

"A man who tries to talk of crime wave, and who brushes aside nonchalantly the relationship between the so-called let-down of postwar morals and the question of prohibition, may relieve himself easily of the duty of searching for causes, but he really talks like a child. No man who can cavalierly, and with a grand bravado flourish, sweep out of consideration the eighteenth amendment and its enforcement act does not know the rudiments of our social life. The very front drive of the crime commission faces the prohibition problem.

"As a total abstainer all my life, I yet realize that the relationship between the increasing rampage of lawlessness and the cluttering up of court dockets and prisons is intimate and inevitable, is not in its scource, yet at least in its sequence and consequence, with the prohibition question."

"Ku-Kluxian Accusation."

Taking up Judge Cayton's charge that "during the past decade we have definitely failed to perform our duties as Jews and Americans," Dr. Simon said, in part: "The Constitution of the United States gives every man the right to befoul his own nest. Who is 'we,' and how many Jews in America are guilty of this charge?

"How a man can permit his conscience to sleep quietly after relieving himself of such a Klu Kluxian accusation against his own people is beyond my apprehension. I will not try to psychoanalyze him. I have not even the time to analyze the stupidity as well as the cruelty of the charge.

"Permit me, however, this comment. Up to the time of the war, and within three years thereafter, we were regaled with numerous charges of disloyalty and unpatriotism on the part of certain Jews. Our detractors were always more or less specific in assuring the public that not all Jews were traitors.

"But it was given to this young judge to sweep out of consideration the kindly exceptions which our Christian detractors made, to awaken out of slumbering quietus this charge of disloyalty to America, and to direct the accusation against his people en masse.

"We protest against his accusing every Jewish mother's son in this congregation and in this land of lack of patriotism. Every one of us has been declared guilty. Some few of us may be guilty, but every one in Israel has been pilloried as having ingloriously failed to rise to his duty as an American, and yet there is some satisfaction in knowing that Nathan Cayton, at best, is one in the ermine beauty of his unclouded chasity—who does not come under this condemnation."

COMMISSIONERS BUY CHURCH FOR CENTER

War, in 1866, that it was finally completed and Bishop John P. Newman was installed as its first pastor. The church was built with funds solicited from all parts of the United States under authorization from the general conference of the Methodist Church and was dedicated as the National Methodist Church.

Many prominent Americans have worshiped in its ancient pews, among them being Presidents Grant and McKinley, Vice President Fairbanks, Leland Standford and Mayor Emory, the last Mayor of Washington, while among those worshiping at the church now are Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Edward Gann, his sister and official hostess.

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery is the present pastor. He served the church for five years from 1911 to 1916 during his first pastorate and is now in the fourth year of his second pastorate. It is not known yet whether another church edifice will be constructed or the congregation will be consolidated with another church.

The purchase agreement, signed by J. Phelps Hand, president of the quarterly conference of the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, and by Maj. L. E. Atkins, Assistant Engineer Commissioner and chairman of the Municipal Center land purchasing committee, which includes Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and William P. Richards, District assessor, whose signatures also were affixed, states:

"This property is to be occupied by the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church without payment of rent until January 1, 1931. The officials of the church shall have the right to remove all furniture and fixtures and the glass in the windows, provided they put plain glass back in the place of any glass removed, and such additional articles as are listed and set forth in the attached exhibit, which is hereby made a part of this agreement."

Among these additional articles is listed a statue of Bishop Newman, the Clark library, a memorial stone in the floor of te main hallway, corner stone and contents, stained and other glass windows and memorials, including window frames, two double memorial doors to the main church, chimes, the organ, pulpits and their equipment, baptismal font, communion equipment, all tablets and plates on walls, windows and pews, and memorials of all kinds.

In addition, the church is to be permitted to remove all other furnishings, such as chairs, signs, tables, flags, stools and desks, pianos, clocks, cabinets, kitchen equipment, pews and cushions, carpets, books, the keystone over the pulpit, drinking fountain, electric fixtures, and all other furniture and equipment.

Decision of the church officials to make the sale to the District government to complete the area needed fo rerection of the new municipal center was made at a special meeting of the quarterly conference of the church on December 11, at which Dr. Hand, whose official title is District superintendent of the Washington District of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was authorized to sign the contract with the District land purchase committee.

Other municipal center purchases completed yesterday included 1,501 square feet at 329 C street northwest, bought from Louis A. Ludwig through Robert F. Cogswell for $4,166. The purchase agreement stipulates that the Allen Mitchell & Co. brass foundry is to be permitted to continue to occupy the premises on a month-to-month basis at a rental of $300 yearly.

The premises at 317 and 319 John David H. Moore, of the Southern Building, for $54,000, cvering a total of 6,384 square feet. Tenants of the building on this land also are to be permitted to continue tenancy on a month-to-month basis.

The fourth purchase is that of 2,000 square feet at 456 C street of that address, for $9,600, with the northwest, bought from Mary Brunell, stipulation that settlement is to be made upon completion of examination of title and that Mrs. Brunell is to be permitted to occupy her present home until April 1 without any demand for rent being made by the District, and that no rent is to be charged her thereafter, in event she continues to occupy the premises, in excess of $50 monthly.

Secretary Wants U. S. To Keep Muscle Shoals

(Associated Press.)

Disapproving all pending measures for disposition of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power project, Secretary Hyde yesterday recommended legislation which would continue the Government in control of revenue from this gigantic war-time plant.

In a letter to Chairman McNary, of the Senate agriculture committee, the Secretary of Agriculture recommended no definite plan for operation of the plant, but said that the theory had been abandoned that the nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals can be of any benefit in lowering the cost of fertilizer to the farmers.

been pointed to by dry leaders as the main problem of prohibition enforcement.

Secretary Mellon returned to his post and announced that he was standing behind the Coast Guard crew which killed three men on the rumrunner Black Duck in a chase off Newport last Sunday. He insisted the guardsmen acted wholly within the law.

At the Senate, where the quarreling of Republican drys over the Hoover administration enforcement policies started the agitation over prohibition, the statement making ceased as each side watched developments.

There were indications that Senator Fess, of Ohio, would be the administration choice as chairman of the proposed joint congressional committee to study reorganization of the enforcement machinery—a post that Senator Fess has proposed be tendered to Senator Borah, of Idaho, chief critic of the Hoover enforcement program.

Fess Shuns Position.

The Ohio senator declined to discuss the possibility of his appointment as chairman of the committee beyond saying he did not want the task and would take it only under compulsion. President Hoover had Senator Fess as a guest at dinner last night at the White House. Senator Capper, of Kansas, another dry, also was a dinner guest.

Senator Borah, who has called for a cleaning out of the Government's enforcement personnel "from top to bottom," smiled warily at the Fess suggestion that he be made chairman. He commented only, "I am deeply moved by the solicitude of my friend from Ohio."

Solicitor General Hughes prepared the brief for the Supreme Court, asking it to reverse the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals which held that Alfred E. Norris, a New York banker, was not guilty of conspiracy in ordering liquor from a Philadelphian.

Reasoning Is Given.

"If the purchaser carries liquor to his home," the brief said, "he is guilty of the crime of transportation, and while he keeps it he is guilty of the crime of possession. If a purchaser agrees and cooperates with the seller to have the liquor transported not to himself but to a friend, it seems clear that he is guilty of a conspiracy to transport. We submit that there is no reason why the fact that the agreed transportation is to himself makes him less guilty.

"Whether or not the national prohibition act makes the act of purchase a crime of itself (a question which is not involved in this case), it manifestly does not invest the purchaser with any special immunity from the consequenses of doing those things which beyond question are made criminal."

The Treasury is making an independent investigation into the shooting of Black Duck smugglers. T. F. Finnegan, collector of customs at Boston; Joseph P. McKenna, special customs agent from Washington, and George N. Murphy, customs agent for Providence, are conducting the inquiry.

District Attorney in Charge.

Assistant Secretary Lowman said the cases of the Coast Guard crew had been referred to the district attorney at Providence, R. I., and that the advice of this attorney would govern the course of the Coast Guard in response to the request that the men testify at an inquest in Newport.

Secretary Mellon asserted that all reports of the Coast Guard indicated that "everything was regular and that they were justified in doing waat they were doing."

"Our men," he said, "only use force where it is absolutely necessary. The Coast Guard gave this boat warning and it was endeavoring to escape and the Coast Guard could not do less than they did."

Mellon also proposed yesterday that all of prohibition enforcement be transferred from the Treasury to the Justice Department. President Hoover has suggested that all of the enforcement machinery be transferred to the Justice Department except that dealing with the industrial alcohol permits, but Mellon would put this in the Justice Department too. The Treasury Secretary had no comment to offer on the public demands of Senators Norris, of Nebraska, and Brookhart, of Iowa, Republicans, for his resignation as chief enforcement officer.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Making a workshop out of a public street may be a successful way to reduce one's expenses, but the traffic regulations do not permit such economies. The day when a man could park his car at the curb and leisurely proceed to make repairs is past.

Only minor repairs may be made and then only in case of emergency. The authorities believe that such work should be done in one's own garage or in a repair shop so as not to litter up the streets with cars that are being overhauled and can not be moved readily.

Example: A driver parks his car in front of his residence and then goes ahead with the job of giving his carburetor a thorough cleaning, adjusting valves, and painting the top of the car. Since that work can not be classed as being of an emergency character, it is not allowable under the regulations.

livered thereto or removed therefrom."

This section was omitted, it was explained, "because such an extension of the search warrant provisions of existing laws would, it is believed, meet with general public disfavor, would result in the search of homes of persons not commercially engaged in dealing in liquor, and subject the homes in the District of Columbia to searches not sanctioned elsewhere."

Other Offenses Cited.

The only offenses defined in the Howell bill which are not covered in the prohibition act, the letter points out, are described as: "(1) Drinking and being intoxicated in public; (2) driving a vehicle other than an automobile while drunk; and (3) permitting the use of one's property as a common nuisance."

Section 6 of the measure would make it mandatory upon the District Commissioners as well as the police to "investigate and report violations of this act and of all laws of the United States relating to the manufacture and taxation of any traffic in intoxicating liquor."

The reports, it is added, must be made to the United States district attorney.

Minor offenses, such as drunkenness and operating a vehicle other than an automobile while intoxicated, would be handled, however, by the corporation counsel.

The Attorney General's report lays much emphasis on the congestion of District court cases.

Declaring that the Supreme Court's calendar is "many months behind," Mr. Mitchell asserts that "the court is so far behind that with one additional judge it would be a slow process for it to bring its dockets up to date * * *. Two additional judges will expedite the work."

The letter included documents showing the number of cases handled by the District, Municipal and Police Courts.

"The great need for the Police Court is for enlarged quarters," the Attorney General says.

Years' Delay Is Seen.

He points out that while this situation has been provided for in the plans for the District building program, it "may be four or five years before adequate quarters are provided for the Police Court."

The recommendation regarding the need for legislation to regulate the sale of securities is very general in nature. While stating that the matter is not strictly within the province of the Department of Justice, Mr. Mitchell closes his letter with the axiom: "Prevention is better than prosecution, and it would tend to relieve the burdens of this department and of the courts of this District if legislation were enacted similar to that adopted in many States for the supervision of such business."

Citizens' Advisory Group to Meet.

A meeting of the Citizens Advisory Council is to be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the office of Engineer Commissioner William B. Ladue, in the District Building, it was announced yesterday by Hugh W. Frampton, recorder for the council.

Hoovers Plan To Be Guests At Club Fete

Congressional Women to Receive President and First Lady.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover will be guests of honor at a reception at the Congressional Club on Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock. They will attend the reception following the dinner to be given in their honor by Vice President Curtis, who, with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, will also be a guest at the club fete.

For many a long day it was the custom of the Congressional Club to give three gala receptions each year—one for the President, one for the Vice President, in his role as presiding officer of the Senate, and the third for the Speaker of the House, their wives, of course, sharing honors with them. But after the early days of his administration, President Coolidge did not see fit to accept the club's invitation and an afternoon reception for Mrs. Coolidge was substituted. So the proposed party on Tuesday marks a return to a pleasant tradition. It will have special interest, moreover, as the first formal function at the club for this season, this important official group having been involved with the rest of the social world in the period of official mourning.

Mrs. Porter Dale, president of the club will receive, assisted by the vice presidents, Mrs. C. Williiam Ramseyer, of Iowa; Mrs. Clarence Lea, of California; Mrs. F. Wallace Dempsey, of New York; Mrs. Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Tom Connally, of Texas; Mrs. Daniel A. Reed, of New York, secretary; Mrs. Joe Crail, of California, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Clay Stone Briggs, of Texas, treasurer.

Mrs. Homer Hoch, of Kansas, chairman of the hostess committee, will ask a group of women to assist her.

For its weekly Friday afternoon tea yesterday the club had captured Mrs. Winnigerode Andrews, who conducted a delighted audience "Through Ten Administrations." Seasoned with amusing anecdotes, she paraded the press, the manners, the equipages and the activities of the Washington of an older day to the delight of those who remembered and the entertainment of those who did not.

The assassination of Garfield, the inauguration of McKinley and the strenuous days of Roosevelt were touched upon with an unofficial and witty slant which kept her hearers chuckling. The author of "My Studio Window," "Memoirs of a Poor Relation" and other delightful volumes, Mrs. Andrews has known everybody worth knowing in Washington for 30 years. For this acquaintance she marshaled Greeley and Schley, Gen. Joe Wheeler, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, John Burroughs and scores of others to illustrate her narrative.

She described the rose velvet dress worn by Mrs. John B. Henderson at a house warming at Boundary Castle, gave recipes for the punch served at "Cabinet Day" receptions in the McKinley administration, and called to mind the herdics on Sixteenth street, drawn by flea-bitten horses. Then, telling of a luncheon club of the '80s, with $5 set as the limit of each menu, she urged a return to simplicity in entertaining.

One lone representative was in the audience, Representative Otis Wingo, and after questioning him as to whether he was dry or wet, Mrs. Andrews presented him with her recipe for claret punch, treasured from prohibition days, which called for a dozen bottles of claret to a dozen lemons.

Silver Years

"After the golden years of youth, come those of fine silver."

By GERTRUDE S. TROWBRIDGE.

If a child, when he should be dressing, sits on the side of the bed, with one stocking half on, the other on the floor, and with wide eyes fixed on Fairyland, his mother is apt to say: "Hurry and dress! Don't sit there all day with half a stocking on. If you want to dream, you can do it just as well dressed as when you sit there shivering and forgetting."

As years go by, we automatically get into our clothes; but we still dream; and, without going to Freud, we would better watch that dreaming. Life without dreams would be a dull thing, quite lacking in invention; but life that is all dreams is worse.

Perhaps the most futile use of imagination is that which starts with: "If things were different—" instead of: "Things being as they are—."

"The common problem, yours, mine, everyone's,
Is not to fancy what were fair in life
Provided it could be—but finding first
What may be, then find out how to make it fair
Up to our means, a very different thing."

No soul escapes dark hours; but many are self-darkened.

We can not expect to be always able to stay on the heights; and we can rarely correct a bad mental habit between night and morning, although "one is a servant to a bad habit only as long as he thinks he is."

It is the habitual thought that counts. We can flavor it with gloom and bitterness or with sweetness and light. This without being Polly-Anna. But it is possible to copy robins as they sing in the rain.

William Lyon Phelps says that "the happiest person is the one who thinks the most interesting thoughts" and Emerson makes this delightful plea: "If you have not slept or if you have slept, or if you have headache, or sciatica, or leprosy, or thunder stroke, I beseech you, by all angels, to hold your peace and not pollute the morning, to which all the housemates bring serene and pleasant thoughts, by corruption and groans."

We are told to cultivate ideals, not fantasies. Here is a good definition of their difference: "If our desire to be universally loved makes us happier in ourselves and of more service to others, it is an ideal; if it makes us feel depressed and not wanted * * * it is a morbid fantasy. The very function of an ideal is to stimulate us to endeavor. If it does not stimulate, it is not an ideal but merely a fantasy."

Ball for Bud Of Army Set Is Brilliant

Miss Yates Makes Bow to Society at Event in Mayflower.

Important among the gayeties of the waning holiday season was the ball given last night at the Mayflower by Mrs. Mark Reid Yates for her niece, Miss Katherine Taliaferro Yates, who had her formal presentation to society at this fete. Miss Yates is the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. E. Sears Yates, of Fort Defiance, near Staunton, Va., who came to Washington for the ball and are guests of the hostess.

As a more formal preliminary to the dance, Mrs. Yates gave a dinner in the Chinese room at the Mayflower in compliment to her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse.

Mrs. Yates was assisted in receiving by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr and Mrs. John Sellers Barnes, of Gibson Island, Md.

Her other guests at dinner included the Ambassador of Turkey, Ahmed Mouhter Bey; the Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, the Minister of Persia, Mirza Davoud Khan Meftah; Senator and Mrs. Clarence C. Dill, Senator Millard F. Snow Halts Flight Of Eielson Scouts

Canadian Aviators Await Favorable Weather to Start Flier Hunt.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—A low ceiling and light snow here today kept the Canadian fliers from hopping off for Nome to take part in the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Alaskan airmen missing since November 9. The snow and low ceiling were reported as general between here and Nome.

Capt. Pat Reid, leader of the fliers, had not given up hope that the remaining two Fairchild planes would get in the air today and head for Nulato, wireless station and trading center about 250 miles from here on the Yukon River and on the direct route to Nome.

The planes were taken into the air today for final tests so as to be ready to take off for Nulato in case of a break in the weather later in the day. Only two of the three Fairchilds sent from Seattle to Alaska for use in the search will be available. The third was damaged beyond repair when Gifford Swartman crashed in a slough while taking off yesterday on the hop to Nulato.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs will leave shortly for Paterson, N. J., where they will visit friends and will then return to their home State, Maine. Mrs. Briggs is the daughter of the late Senator William P. Frye, of Maine.

U. S. Amity Called Chief Mexico Aim

President-Elect Avers Foes of This Country Are Insignificant.

Chicago, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—International amity, particularly with its neighbor to the north, is Mexico's chief aim, President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio said on his arrival in Chicago today. Senor Ortiz Rubio is concluding a six weeks' good will tour of the United States before taking office on January 5.

The cries of "Yankee imperialism" which have been heard in other Latin-American countries are voiced by but a small and insignificant number in Mexico, the next president of that country declared. Interchange of trade, development of transportation facilities between the two countries and a growing sentiment of good will are the bonds which have strengthened the spirit of friendliness between Mexico and the United States, Ortiz Rubio stated.

The president-elect's wife and their three children, accompanied by an entourage of Mexican government officials, diplomats and secret service men, reached Chicago this morning after a visit in Detroit and will remain until Sunday, when they will leave for Kansas City and the West Coast.

THE CHINESE PUZZLE.

Fortunately, the Chinese situation resulting from the Nanking government's demand for the abolition of extraterritoriality is not so serious as it appears on the surface. An immediate practical application of China's new policy would disrupt Chinese relations with the United States as well as with other powers. A deferred application, based on the working out of a satisfactory Chinese judicial system, will do no more than encourage a thorough investigation to ascertain when Chinese courts may be substituted for foreign courts dealing with extraterritorial rights.

Secretary Stimson and Minister Wu have been in conference relative to the new Chinese program. The Chinese, as a matter of course, are demanding that the government of China be accorded the same right which every other government exercises, namely, the right to administer its own laws. Mr. Stimson, on behalf of the United States, has replied that America freely concedes the principle for which China is contending. The remaining question is when and how and under what circumstances the Chinese government will be in a position to administer justice to foreigners in China.

Chinese officials themselves are not anxious to have China assume the burden of administering justice until she is ready and able to do so. This is one of the encouraging features of the problem. While contending for the principle embodied in the right to administer its own justice the Nanking government is well aware of the fact that there is no system of Chinese justice at present that can take the place of the foreign court system—consequently the Chinese leaders would hesitate about putting extraterritoriality into effect now even if the powers would suggest it.

There is reason to believe that the problem will not be solved in a few weeks or a few months. It may take years. But so long as China's right to establish a judicial system is unchallenged, and China goes forward in the work of codifying the law and setting up competent courts, there need be no difficulty as to the date for extinguishment of the present system. Patience in dealing with the Chinese problem is the prime requisite.

The situation is admittedly delicate, and a single false move may entail unexpected consequences. It is necessary on the one hand not to deny China's right, and on the other not to lend encouragement to irresponsible elements in China. The hotheads of China should be given no excuse for trying to bring about a break between their government and the powers that are obliged to protect their nationals in China until China itself can protect them in their lives and property.

SOVIET INTRIGUE IN LONDON.

The gullibility of the British Labor government in recognizing Soviet Russia without effective guarantees against propaganda has been rewarded by the establishment of a communistic newspaper in London. Just two weeks after diplomatic relations were restored the inevitable has happened. The Communist International is knifing the Laborites in the back, while the Soviet diplomats are professing friendship.

The establishment of this communistic daily in London was apparently for the purpose of circulating messages from the International. A message from this propaganda agency describes the new paper as a weapon to combat the anti-Soviet activities of the Labor government, to fight its "brutal" colonial policies and counteract its preparation for another "imperialistic war." Socialism in England is almost as hateful to the Russian communists as capitalism in America. The avowed purpose of the Communist International is to destroy the governments of the so-called capitalistic nations. The cultivation of diplomatic relations by the U. S. S. R is an official contribution toward that end.

In spite of the bitter experience of Britain when ambassadors were previously exchanged with the Soviet, the Labor government has walked blindly into another trap. Public sentiment in England demanded that relations be established only after effective guarantees against propaganda had been made. The Labor government had fair warning that no such pledges would be given by the Moscow authorities. Foreign Secretary Henderson told the House of Commons that the Soviet had pledged itself to restrain the International from spreading propaganda in Britain and her colonies, but the agreement disavowed any responsibility for the International, as they have always done. The duplicity of the Russians in entering the agreement was obvious to every one except the Labor government.

A SUGAR BOUNTY.

Senator Borah is said to be perfecting a proposal for granting a bounty to domestic sugar growers to supplement the existing tariff protection.

The sugar tariff has been a baffling problem for the coalition in the Senate. The insurgents have posed as advocates of low tariff rates, but they applied their theories to industry only. Agricultural rates have been boosted without restraint. But such a row has been stirred up over the proposed increase in the sugar duty that the coalition can hardly support the rates in the House bill or those suggested by the Senate finance committee and at the same time keep their low-tariff banners flying. Senator Borah is to come forth with a "face saving" scheme which would keep the tariff low and appease the Western beet growers with a bounty from the United States Treasury.

The two principal arguments that are being put forth to support the bounty plan are that it would give relief to the domestic sugar interests without increasing the duty, and would act as a bar against Philippine sugar. The bounty would be paid for domestic production only. While Philippine sugar would still come into the United States duty free, competition with the domestic product would be difficult as long as the drain on the Treasury continued. The scheme is perfect in every way, except that it would appropriate public funds for the benefit of private industry—a principle which the American people have repeatedly rejected.

Senator Borah recognizes the need for restriction of imports from the Philippines for the good of the islanders as well as the producers of this country. But if the Senate hasn't the courage to place a limitation upon Philippine products, how can it justify this move to accomplish the same purpose by an indirect method? If the coalition is afraid to sponsor the duty which it considers necessary to protect domestic sugar producers, how can it ask the taxpayers of the country to pay a bounty to sugar producers? This bounty is a more daring raid on the Treasury than the debenture scheme which the coalition wrote into the Senate bill.

SHERLOCK HOLMES.

William Gillette is to delight Washington next week by presenting himself in his proper character as Sherlock Holmes. His farewell appearance in New York has been marked by unprecedented manifestations of personal and professional regard, and a similar demonstration may be expected in Washington.

Few characters of the imagination have ever been embodied by an actor as Sherlock Holmes has been incarnated by William Gillette. In this case author and actor merged their genius with unprecedented success. Lord Dundreary, as developed by the elder Sothern, was counted a brilliant creation, and Edwin Booth was rightly deemed incomparable in the role of Hamlet. But there were other acceptable Dundrearys, notably that of the younger Sothern, and other illustrious Hamlets, as presented by Forbes-Robertson and Walter Hampden. But Sherlock Holmes is William Gillette, and Gillette is Holmes. In the long annals of the stage only one actor comes to mind who can bear comparison with Gillette as the embodiment of Sherlock Holmes. That is Joseph Jefferson as the embodiment of Rip Van Winkle.

The American stage is honored by William Gillette. He brings to this generation the glory of other days, and carries forward rich traditions that should never perish. May his farewells be perpetual!

NO FOOLPROOF PLANES.

There is reason for both satisfaction and disappointment in the outcome of the contest for development of a "foolproof" airplane. The $100,000 prize offered by the Guggenheim Fund for the promotion of safe aeronautics has been awarded to the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co. for a plane which is largely conventional in design. The distinguishing feature of the winning plane is floating ailerons, which provide remarkable control at slow speeds. It will be a source of satisfaction to the entire aviation industry that a plane with a high enough degree of safety to claim this award has been developed.

On the other hand, it must be noted that no other entry met the qualifying requirements. A British plane passed a majority of the qualifying tests but failed to slow down to a gliding speed of 38 miles per hour. It was therefore unnecessary to hold the final competitive test, and the prize was awarded to the only qualifying plane. Only fifteen planes were entered, and the early prospects of the contest were such that its sponsors expressed doubt that its purpose could be achieved.

The first proposal of a safety contest of this kind two years ago met with enthusiastic approval. Twenty-seven organizations promised to submit entries. Many of them failed to carry out their plans because they have been so intensely interested in standardized and quantity production. It appears that safety in air transportation has become a secondary consideration. Efforts at standardization discourage manufacture of planes that will be suitable to enter a safety contest. The result is a large overproduction of standard types, and a shortage of experimental craft designed to reduce the hazards of flying.

Ultimately the airplane will be standardized and turned out in quantity production. But there is nothing to be gained from attempting to hasten that day. Many improvements must be made before flying will be popularized. Progress depends on perfection of planes from the safety standpoint quite as much as on reductions in cost. The advance of aviation might be much more rapid if attention now given to the problems of marketing planes were turned to development of safety equipment.

RAILROAD EFFICIENCY.

The annual report of railroad earnings has come to be awaited eagerly. The roads have been making a wonderful record for efficiency. In the face of decreasing passenger business and with expenses continually on the upgrade, each year they have been able to show an increased net income by increasing car loadings and net ton miles. The report just made public by the American Railway Association, based on the actual figures for ten months and estimates for the other two, proves that 1929 has followed the recent tendency. Net operating income for the year reached a total of $1,282,000,000, representing a return of 4.99 per cent, the highest in ten years.

R. H. Aishton, president of the association, in a formal statement issued with the report, states that the large earnings came as a result of "one of the greatest freight-traffic volume years in history and the highest operating efficiency and economy ever attained." Gross operating revenues, for example, reached a total of $6,357,000,000, an increase of 2.9 per cent over the year preceding, whereas operating expenses reached $4,535,000,000, only 1.4 per cent greater than in 1928. While passenger traffic was less than in any year in the last twenty, amounting to 31,000,000,000 passenger miles, a reduction of one-third from the record year of 1920, total loading of revenue freight will probably reach 52,798,000 cars, a reduction of but six-tenths of 1 per cent from the record for 1928. Measured in net-ton miles, however, the 1929 volume will probably reach 490,000,000,000, an increase of 1 per cent over 1928.

"The fact that rail carriers have been able to meet the transportation system," says Mr. Aishton, "has been due not only to the greatest maximum ever attained in utilization of equipment, but also to improved operating methods that are constantly being placed in effect and the many new economies and efficiencies that have been made possible by large capital expenditures in the last six years."

The railroads are entitled to commendation for their record of efficiency. Their stability is universally important.

Tinted milk bottles, green for Grade A, brown for pasteurized, black for buttermilk, &c., are proposed in Los Angeles. But how can the cows tell 'em apart?

Lindy says women have an important place in aviation. That's all right; there's more room for them to drive up there.

New York, it appears, can only provide for charity by increasing the mayor's salary to $40,000.

RUBBER MONOPOLY FAILS

From the New York Times.

From British Malaya come reports that the production of rubber in that region will be greater by 40 per cent than ever before. As a result of this vast increase and of the enlarged output in the Dutch East Indies the present indications are for a continued low price for rubber. This is a reminder that efforts to thwart the laws of economics often are followed by disastrous reactions. While the present conditions can not be entirely blamed on the Stevenson restriction plan, by which the British planters in Malaya sought to maintain an artificially high price for rubber, there is no doubt that the unfortunate scheme did much to bring about the conditions which at present prevail.

Had all joined in, it might have worked. But the Dutch, producing about half of the rubber in this district, refused to cooperate, foreseeing greater profits in remaining aloof. This was the first—and worst—blow to the device. As the American consumers were those worst hit, they at once sought to cut down their purchases and devoted more time to the study of the reclamation of used rubber. Neither American consumers, nor Dutch producers, nor recalcitrant English planters caused the complete failure, but rather the natives. They had seen fortunes made by their fellows engaged in the production of so-called "native rubber"—produced by natives on their own small farms, usually in small amounts from a few trees.

The output of this native rubber has grown so fast—in the Dutch East Indies it formed about a third of the total rubber production in 1923 and nearly a half in 1928—that it is having a very material influence on the entire rubber market. To control it is practically impossible. Each year more trees on the natives' farms are coming into bearing. Although the natives are as a rule more careless about tapping, they appear to be learning rapidly and at the same time to be preparing the latex, as the sap is called, in a better manner.

The Stevenson restriction scheme officially came to an end a year ago. Its defenders still maintain that it served its purpose by holding up the price of rubber for a while and enabling the planters to regain some of their past losses. But as it placed a premium on the production of rubber outside of the restricted areas and, in particular, held up before the natives the lure of large prices for rubber for years to come, it did more than any other single factor to stimulate the planting of rubber throughout the world. It was indirectly responsible for the special attempts to develop rubber in the Philippines and for the new rubber plantations in Liberia and the efforts to establish plantations in Brazil. This new production is now beginning to be felt, and the planters in Malaya are paying for their past errors of economic judgment.

THE STURDY DUTCH.

A Dutch breakfast is like no other meal in the world, according to the World Traveler. There are, to start with, at least seven kinds of bread—plain white bread, ginger bread, plain buns, buns with raisins, brown bread, toasted biscuits, sweet cakes and a kind of fruit cake. You will find at least three or four kinds of meat—cold sliced veal, roast beef, ham and sausages.

Then, if you don't see it all at once, you smell the cheese, two or three of the Dutch specialties, including Limburger and Edam. There are several dishes piled with boiled eggs, and, of course, there are jams and honey and seasonable fruits. The climax is a pot of steaming coffee, not the insipid beverage of the rest of Europe, but the real thing from the Dutch colonies.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

ARGUMENTATIVE JANET.

'Tis strange that one so very young
Can have so positive a tongue,
And also can possess a mind
So much to argument inclined.

At seven years old that child of ours
Displays unusual vocal powers,
And, what I think is stranger still,
A most unusual strength of will.

She fears no threat; she fears no frown.
With argument she'll talk us down,
And with the logic of a child
She fairly drives her parents wild.

"Now, Janet," mother whispers low,
"Please bear in mind that I said 'no.'"
"I know you said it," she'll reply,
"But, mother dear, please tell me why?

"Why may I not go out to play
Because it is a rainy day?
What difference does the weather ma[illegible]
I have a raincoat I can take."

When "no" is said to me I stop
And promptly let the matter drop.
I meekly takes his mother's nay
And never has a word to say.

The maids, the nurse, won't argue back
Or still insist that white is black,
But Janet stands through thick and thin
And talks us into giving in.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.
By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

A few days ago you lost your wrist watch. And though you were vexed by the inconvenience and uncertainty of life without a timepiece, you accepted the loss itself very philosophically.

"It solves one problem," you said. "You'll know what to get me for Christmas."

Today, for the 342d time, you left your bedroom in the morning without turning off the lights.

True, they burned less than an hour and the cost of the electricity was only a few cents; but why spend a few cents without getting anything in return?

People who do that are called suckers.

Waste isn't intelligent, Honey. It's not only morally wrong but stupid as well.

What would you think of a woman who made twenty biscuits for each meal and dumped ten in the garbage can? Would you think her very bright?

Waste is typical of America because we are a nation of social climbers. We long to be lords and ladies; and since that privilege is denied us, we do the next best thing and live as we imagine lords and ladies would.

Since those who have the most money can make the biggest show, and thus seem most important, those who have less do their utmost to seem rich and win a similar glory.

They spend their money like drunk sailors—tipping too generously, refusing to count their change, grandly instructing the clerk to charge it without bothering to ask the price.

Do you know why? We are a nation of show-offs because we are ashamed of being what we are and wish to seem what we aren't.

Our stupid waste is prompted by our show-off complex, and it's vulgar. It is a confession of shamed inferiority.

The despised "tightwad" is merely a sensible man who doesn't waste his money to impress simpletons. It is the greenhorn who tips the waiter a dollar. He means to say: "I'm a rich guy." But the waiter knows he is just a hick.

To waste anything in a world where many are in want is a moral crime. What right have you to take more than you need and throw away the surplus?

Let those who feel the need of ego fodder waste their money and possessions to show how rich and swell they are, but don't copy them. It's vulgar, and vulgarity is nasty. Love, Dad.

THE ONCE OVER
By H. I. PHILLIPS

HERE COMES LIZZIE THE THIRD.

Henry Ford announces the birth of a new girl, Elizabeth 3d. Father and child are doing nicely.

• • • •

• • • •

Elizabeth 2d has gone the way of Lizzie the First, and the Colossus of Detroit now gives the world an opportunity to startle traffic cops in a new model. She's better looking than Elizabeth 2d, and compared to the Model T Lizzie she is as Senator Brookhart beside the Maharajah of India and as Topsy beside Queen Marie of Roumania.

• • • •

Gone are the days when it was possible to tell a Ford by a fleeting glance over the shoulder. Lizzie has developed.

• • • •

It seems only yesterday that a Ford was something that made a terrific roar when it backed out of a garage and sounded like a tractor filled with kitchen utensils when it bounded down the street in a series of short leaps.

• • • •

All a car had to be to be a Ford was black, loud, funny and tough.

• • • •

It gave service and was faithful, but from an artistic standpoint it ranked with the first steamboat, the old-fashioned parlor stove and our early American battle monuments.

• • • •

When Henry Ford, deciding to reform and lead a better life, scrapped Lizzie, it was the most sweeping step against ugliness ever taken in America.

• • • •

Two years ago Hank brought out a car that could look pleasant and now he brings out a successor that is even swankier. She has a longer body and more room inside, making it possible for an owner to get in without a prayer and out without a jimmy.

• • • •

• • • •

Fancy a Ford that you can't rust. Now anything can happen.

Hank is reported at work on even more refinements. The 1931 car, the Sunday picknickers delight, may have a banana-peeling attachment and an incinerator for bread crusts, eggshells and apple cores.

Ultimately—who can tell—he may even supply an electric cigar-lighter.

THE RED MAN GETS WISE.

The noble red man, who once sold Manhattan Island for $24 worth of glass beads, seems to be getting wise to himself—or, perhaps, wise to his white brother, says the Marion Chronicle. A Western museum curator recently toured the Southwest to collect Indian pottery for his museum. He found, he says, that the Indian nowadays is cooking his meals in nice steel and aluminum pots and pans made by modern mills. He uses them because they are more serviceable and convenient than his own pots. But he still makes pots, just the same. And why? To sell to the white tourist, who buys them without the slightest hesitation. With the money thus obtained the Indian outfits his own kitchen, and has enough change left to buy food and clothing as well. The red man, it seems, is making up for that episode of the glass beads.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Lowbrow Discusses Dr. Osborn's 50,000,000-Year Theory. One Year Like 1929 Is All He Can Grasp.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When I first read Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn's statement before the American Association of the Advancement of Science that he believes man first appeared on earth about 50,000,000 years ago I was staggered. No doubt, I am one among 50,000,000 laymen, more or less, who were similarly affected. On second thought my feeling in the matter is akin to resentment, and, no doubt, this feeling is shared by thousands of lowbrow thinkers. Before the astounding figures of the seasoned paleontologist we sit speechless and fail to question him very closely as to the postulates on which he grounds his ex-cathedra conclusions from time to time.

Following this, our mental attitude is like that of a small boy overawed by a bigger schoolmate, and in behalf of my fellow-laymen I have concluded to submit a simple layman's casual view regarding the attempt to accurately determine the length of man's evolutionary life on earth.

In the first place it may be well to consider that the "scientific" allotment is roughly from 100,000 to this latest figure of 50,000,000 years. And, incidentally, one might suppose that thinkers who with philosophical assurance can face periods of millions of years, with their possible transmutations and cycles within cycles, would not bat an eyebrow at a little matter like turning water into wine.

By dividing the 50,000,000-year period into smaller periods, we may get a very faint idea of how it looms.

In the eyes of science, I suppose, 1,000,000 years is more than ample time for the evolution of man. So that, in the development of the universal plan, 50 evolutions of man might take place during the greater period.

But in the workings of the First Great Cause it is easy to imagine that man might be developed to his present state in the course of 50,000 years, which might account for 1,000 human evolutions.

But what's the use? One year of time like 1929 is about my limit.

LOWBROW.

Dr. Osborn Has Come Part Way, Says a Friendly Critic, Who Suggests Further Study of Scriptures.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your splendid editorial on Dr. Henry Fairchild Osborn's repudiation of the ape ancestry of man suggests further comment.

Having come part of the way from the impossible doctrine of animal ancestry, his splendid intellect should lead him still further, even to the correct Biblical view that the human creator is absolutely disconnected from that of the creation of animals.

Instead of man, as we know him today, having climbed a ladder of degrees from his inferior former self, when we first behold the first of parent human, we have to look aloft to see him standing full height on the top round in the ladder.

What we have attained by education and the various agencies of civilization, have not made us superior in native capacity to Adam.

It is not believed that there is or has ever been a man and woman, the equal, physically or intellectually, to Adam and Eve.

Nor can it be proved that any dog or horse or cow exists that is superior to the first of these species that stood before God, pronounced perfect by Him.

The man who knows science and the Bible is the strong man. At a thousand ledges of scripture teachings there protrudes the suggestion of many a scientific intimation that would have saved much waste of time and many a blundering hazard of a guess. E. R. CARSWELL.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 30.

Theory That Man Is a Relative of Brutes Is Repudiated—Fantastic Imaginings of Man's Origin.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reading your editorial on Dr. Henry Osborn's address before the American Association for the Advancement of Science I took special note of the following sentences regarding the origin of man:

"The human stock separated from the other animals when the first great plateaus appeared on the earth." This was "perhaps 50,000,000 years ago."

"Regardless of their appearance, characteristics or intelligence, the man-like creatures which inhabited the earth millions of years ago were the ancestors of the human race."

"That the human race has sprung from a lower state can not be denied."

Thus the mighty wisdom of man is revealed in the speculations, theories and imaginings concerning the beginning of his race, weird and fantastic as they are. Must I look to the repulsive creatures of the zoo for my progenitors? Are a few scattered bones plus guesses by men of learning sufficient proof of my being a distant relation of an animal, be it monkey or giraffe?

No! Emphatically, No! I still turn with confidence and with reverence to the genealogical record of a kingly lineage. "Which was the son of Enos, which was the son of Seth, which was the son of Adam, which was the son of God" (Luke iii:38). Even in this "intellectual" age the biblical account of man's origin is good enough for me. RALPH NESTLER.

Recipe for New Year Fine If It Doesn't Break.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Here is a New Year recipe: One part aspiration, one part desperation, three hopes. Carefully eliminate all hesitation.

To this add a dash of assurance, pride and self-satisfaction.

On January 1, this should turn out a good resolution.

Handle with care that it be not broken. SUSAN M. HEYWOOD.

JAPANESE ENVOYS IGNORED BY BRITISH

Invitations Are Still Lacking Delegation After Week in London.

WAKATSUKI IS ANXIOUS

London, Jan. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—After a week in London the Japanese naval delegation, headed by former Premier Wakatsuki, have still not been invited to see either the prime minister or the foreign secretary, both of whom are absent from the city, or any other member of the British naval delegation, and apparently will have no chance to interchange views with their hosts until Mr. McDonald returns to London next Friday.

Surprised at this, and anxious—so it was hinted—to lose no more time in putting the Japanese views before the British public, and to register their intention to pursue a policy of open covenants openly arrived at, Wakatsuki received the press at the Japanese Embassy today and answered questions with the utmost freedom.

Criticizes France and America.

After he had stressed the Japanese demand for 70 per cent of British and American cruiser strength as the "smallest ratio" which would meet the requirement of "not disturbing the sense of national security of the Japanese people," Mr. Wakatsuki was asked: "Is 70 per cent a demand or a basis for discussion?"

The Oriental statesman did not hesitate a second as the interpreter translated, but replied: "Both."

Suavely the Japanese spokesman, without violating international courtesy in the slightest, criticized both the French and American attitudes. His government's feeling about the French memorandum was indicated when he said: "We came here under the impression that the decisions of the London conference would become immediately effective. That suggestion (in the French memorandum), that decisions should be made the basis of proposals at Geneva will have to be considered when we hear more about the details later on."

Will Retain Submarines.

The nearest Mr. Wakatsuki came to criticizing the American program was when he said: "So long as we can keep the ratio of 70 per cent, we are willing to go lower than cruisers. We will reduce as other powers will reduce. We are not claiming parity with any power."

This reference to going lower than twelve cruisers refers to Japan's claim for fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers if the United States asks for nineteen.

Japan, the delegation chief said, is not in favor of abolition of the submarine. The Japanese navy, he said, is conceived as a defensive weapon altogether and Japan is ready to possess inferior naval strength compared with other powers.

"Therefore, Mr. Wakatsuki continued, "we think that this weapon, held entirely for defense, should not be abolished. It would be a good thing if the size of submarines could be limited, but as to what extent I refrain from discussing as it would form a subject for the conference."

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

WILLIAM B. SHEARER'S return to the lecture stage naturally raises an interesting little question at Capitol Hill. It is just what does that famous Shearer investigating committee intend to do in his case?

The committee has never concluded its work; it has not even finished with Shearer.

Now it would seem in the ordinary course of news gathering that immediately following the New York story about Shearer's return to the limelight, now two or three days old, that there would have followed a story from the Capitol telling what the committee intended to do, or at least a story recalling that the committee was in existence.

* * * *

THAT no such story has appeared, that there has been no reference to the committee, will very probably be taken by those who follow the news closely as another instance of dereliction on the part of Washington newspapermen.

There are some 200 of them up there at the Capitol and surely some of them would have thought about the committee. This being the case, why, one might ask, did not some of them bestir themselves?

Well, the answer, plain and simple, is Senator Shortridge. When the New York story broke it not only occurred to 1 of the 200, but to practically every one of them, to ask Senator Shortridge when his investigating committee intended to convene again. But none of them did.

* * * *

There is so much work to be done that none of them can take a day off to spend with the California senator. This is what it would mean for one to ask him about the committee, about anything, even to accost him.

This is admittedly strange. Why, you would think that a newspaperman could just pick up the telephone receiver and give the senator a buzz and learn about his committee in a minute or so. It is because you do not know the senator.

* * * *

NO, SIRREE, to make inquiry of the senator would not be merely a passing matter. It would be an event, something that one might look forward to, as he would a trip to New York, as might a kid to a ride on the merry-go-round.

The senator would first insist that you be comfortably seated, that you remove your top coat. Then he would insist that you put your question properly, in the most correct phraseology and he would repeat it and muse over it, draw out the exact shade of meaning, the most minute nuance, in order that there would be a perfect community in this meeting of minds.

Then in order that his answer to your question would be thoroughly understood, he would recite the background of all this Shearer business, how it came about that an investigating committee was set up, how he conducted the hearing to insure fairness. He would read that long resolution that created the committee to show you the authority for it. And he would do all this with impressive gestures, now the upturned palms of the hand, then the minatory finger, and always the solemn mien.

* * * *

THE senator has been aptly described as the poetry of motion and he is every bit of that. You would very probably never get the answer to your question, but you would have forgotten what it was anyway. It would really be a treat to have a session with the senator if you just had the time.

The some 200 newspapermen at the Capitol have thought of working in relays on the question about his committee, that is, one approaching him when he arrives at the office and putting the question, then another one relieving him in five minutes in the hope that by the two hundredth fellow the senator might have answered.

HAGUE CONFERENCE OPENED IN CONCORD

FIRST PROTEST IS HEARD

The Hague, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—The second meeting of The Hague reparations conference opened here today in an atmosphere of concord and calm that contrasted sharply with the feverish beginning of the first session last August.

The representatives of eighteen European powers and of the United States were seated around a square table in the Dutch House of Representatives when the session was formally declared opened this afternoon.

After an address to Queen Wilhelmina and homage to the memory of the late Gustav Stresemann, who died since the first meeting, the conference began perfunctory committee work, which though largely formal and technical will take up at least a fortnight's time.

Reparations Groups Formed.

Two committees were formed, one on German reparations and the other on non-German reparations, and the rest of the work of the conference was referred to them. Premier Jaspar, of Belgium, is chairman of the first committee, and M. Louis Loucheur, French cabinet minister, of the second.

The German reparations committee itself decided to divide its work and asked financial experts to examine the reports of the subcommittees appointed during the August session.

There was a slight flurry in the hall when the Roumanian delegate protested that if the non-German reparations committee reported before the other did the big powers might settle the German reparations question without assuring satisfaction to the small creditors from either Germany or the other reparations debtors, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Assured of Square Deal.

He was assured that there would be a square deal for everybody and the conference continued in the atmosphere of serenity in which it had been convened.

Representatives of the six inviting powers; three British dominions, the six smaller reparations creditors, the three smaller reparations debtors and the United States were present.

The first formal session, which followed a brief public meeting, began by adopting subcommittee reports on Eastern reparations, liquidation of war problems and the organization of the Bank for International Settlements.

U. S.-Italian Parley Asked.

Rome, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Dino Grandi, minister of foreign relations, today received John W. Garrett, United States Ambassador, who presented an invitation of Secretary of State Stimson for a conference preliminary to the London naval parley this month. The meeting will take place in London January 19, two days before opening of the naval conference.

WHO'ZIT?

1. He was an American.
2. He was a member of the United States Senate from a large Eastern State.
3. His term of service was interrupted when he failed to be reelected and was tried on a charge of misappropriating public funds, a charge of which he was acquitted.
4. When the Governor reappointed him the Senate refused to seat him, but later he was reelected and seated.
5. He died early in the present century.
6. Within the past few years the Senate has refused to seat another Senator-elect from the same State.

Answer to yesterday—Charles Stewart Parnell.

SHEARER FACES BAR IF HE TRIES LONDON

U. S. TO TAKE NO HAND

If William B. Shearer attempts to go to London to beat his big bass drum of propaganda during the naval conference the British government is expected to bar him, not on the ground that he is a propagandist, but on the strength of the French dossier that figured in the Senate naval affairs committee's investigation of his activities at the Geneva conference of 1927.

As this French secret service document described Shearer as a "notorious associate of international crooks and swell mobsmen" and linked him up with several unsavory adventures, it supplies ample basis for a debarment order preventing him from setting foot on British soil.

Secretary of State Stimson, who heads the American naval delegation, said today that the United States Government would not ask to have Shearer kept away from the conference. There appear to be two reasons for this: First, the desire to avoid giving Shearer any opportunity to assume the role of martyr, and second, an unwillingness to ask the favor of the British lest a reciprocal one might arise in the future.

So far as can be discovered, there is no proof that Shearer intends to go to London, so that the whole matter may be academic. But his advertised appearance at Carnegie Hall in New York next Sunday night to tell his "Inside Story of Ten Years of International Intrigue Against United States Sea Power," as his speech is billed, has restirred some departmental speculation as to his plans.

WALES OFF TO HUNT SOUTH AFRICA GAME

SAILS WITHOUT FANFARE

Southampton, England, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—The Prince of Wales sailed today aboard the liner Kenilworth Castle for Cape Town, South Africa, to resume the huning trip that he abruptly broke off when King George became seriously ill more than a year ago.

To the accompaniment of cheers from friends ashore and fellow passengers on the ship, the prince went on board the Kenilworth Castle about 3:30 p. m. The hawsers were immediately cast off and the ship pushed out of the docks to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" and of "God Save the King."

As the ship butted her way down Southampton Water through a stiff breeze and a shower of rain, the prince went below to his own private cabin. He was last seen by watchers on the shore as he waved his cap in response to cheers from the people on the dock.

The prince is traveling without protocolor formalities as one of several hundred first-class passengers. He will mingle freely with them and dine at a table near the orchestra in the gilt-domed dining saloon. His table was decorated for dinner tonight with pink and mauve carnations and yellow chrysanthemums and a supply of fresh flowers is being kept on board to keep his table decorated during the seventeen-day voyage.

The prince himself asked that no elaborate arrangement be made for his trip. He wanted no "fuss." Two cabins have been converted into one for him on the promenade deck, and he will use them as a private sitting room. His cabin is located on the upper deck, with a bathroom adjoining.

Rush for Auto Licenses Subsides on Second Day

The confusion that marked the first day's rush to buy 1930 automobile tags on Thursday had subsided yesterday as the clerks of the tax collector's office and the license bureau had their activities systematized to take care of all applicants without delay.

No effort was made to tabulate the results of the day's collections yesterday, although it was stated last night by Wade H. Coombs, superintendent of licenses, that about 5,200 tags were issued yesterday, bringing the total thus far to a figure slightly in excess of 13,000 for all types of cars other than those owned by the District government.

Belgian Princess Departs To Join Humbert in Rome

Marie Jose, With Sovereign Parents and Entourage, Closely Guarded on Trip From Brussels to Italian Capital, Where She Will Be Wed Next Wednesday.

Brussels, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Princess Marie Jose tonight rode away from her native land in a sumptuously decorated royal train for Italy, where, in the normal course of events, she will one day share the throne.

The official party journeying to Rome for her marriage to Crown Prince Humbert on next Wednesday occupied three trains. They left here in close succession after 9:40 p. m., with the exact route to be followed withheld from the public in order that there might be no chance of an anti-Fascist demonstration which might endanger the life of the 23-year-old princess.

Extraordinary police precautions marked the departure. Before the royal party, consisting of King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, Princess Marie Jose, the Belgian Crown Prince and Princess, and Prince Charles reached the station, the police had cleared it and the surrounding streets entirely of spectators.

Station Closely Guarded.

Barriers had been erected in the square near the station and cordons of police pressed back the enormous crowd which sought to catch a glimpse of the princess as she fared forth to her wedding.

The facade of the Gare du Nord was decorated with Belgian and Italian flags and hung with shields bearing the national arms. The great hall of the station had a ceremonial aspect with its lavish adornment. An enormous red carpet stretched from entrance of the station to the main platform, on each side of which were drawn up members of the Belgian patriotic societies, Italians resident in Belgium and the chief railway authorities.

The officials and diplomats arrived half an hour before the time of departure to receive the royal family. They included members of the government headed by the minister of justice.

Cheers Greet Royalty.

The roar of cheering from crowds in the streets heralded the approach of the royalty. Their majesties and the princess were received at the entrance of the station by assembled dignitaries, and Marie Jose was presented with a bouquet of orange blossoms by Baroness Lemonnier.

The princess and her mother wore fur coats. The king and the two princes were in full-dress uniform. Thirty young girls, chosen from pupils of the Brussels School of Music, chanted a song as the party entered.

Princess Moved by Ovation.

Marie Jose seemed deeply moved by the warmth of the welcome and was flushed with excitement as she walked with her father at the head of the procession. She was untiring in acknowledging the cheers and applause. The princess was the first to enter the train, followed by the queen, the crown princess, the king and his two sons.

Inside the railway carriage they were received by Count de Santo Lya, master of ceremonies of the Italian court.

Princess Marie Jose stood in the window of the drawing-room carriage bowing her acknowledgements and shaking the hands of girl friends. From all sides came unceasing shouts of "Long live the princess!" "Long live Prince Humbert!" and "Long live the king!"

As the train disappeared into the night the princess still could be seen waving her gloved hand.

Due at Basle Today.

The trains should reach Basle at about daybreak tomorrow. They are cutting across the shortest edge of northeastern France, so that their progress through French territory will last only eight hours, all in the dead of night.

The itinerary had been generally announced as crossing France and entering Italy at either Modane or Vintimille. Recent disclosures of plots against the lives of Belgian royalty by Italian exiles who had found refuge in France were said to have been responsible for the secrecy of the trip and the ultimate change of the plans to avoid altogether the Riviera section, where many opponents of fascism live.

Artists of District Are Given Awards

Bennett Durand's Portrait of Janet Spaeth Is Prize Winner.

Awards for the annual exhibition of the Society of Washington Artists, which opens tomorrow at the Corcoran Art Gallery, continuing through January, were announced yesterday by the jury of out-of-town artists and critics who judged the various works.

Bennett Durand was announced winner of the portrait and figure competition with a portrait of Janet Spaeth. His exhibit is No. 52. The prize for landscape and marine picture goes to Margaret Fish, with exhibit No. 108, entitled "Old Church on a Hill." Among the still life pictures Alexander V. Levin had the winning work with No. 137, called "Window Light."

Louise Kidder Sparrow won the award among the local sculptors with a bust of Commander Frederick B. Colby, No. 4D. The jurors were Hans Schuler, director of the Maryland Institute in Baltimore; Marion C. Hawthorne, New York artist and wife of Charles W. Hawthorne, and Yarnall Abbott, Philadelphia critic and artist. Officers of the Washington Society will be on hand Sunday afternoon to greet members and guests as the exhibit opens.

FILM PLANE DEBRIS LOCATED OFF COAST

Submerged Wreckage of Air Cruisers Still Retains Seven Bodies.

DIVING PLANS ARE MADE

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 3 (A.P.). The submerged wreckage of the two motion picture planes that collided and plunged into the sea in flames with a loss of ten lives yesterday was located about 400 yards off Rocky Point today, and efforts were started to recover the bodies of the seven missing victims.

Pilots of two Navy planes spotted the wreckage. Immediately water craft engaged in the search, sped to the scene and dropped grappling hooks in an attempt to lift the locked remnants of the two air cruisers.

Failing in efforts to raise the wreckage to the surface, it was planned to use divers to make a search for bodies believed to be imprisoned in the burned and shattered planes.

Diving Operations Prepared.

The mine sweeper Brant and the salvage tug Salt, both from San Pedro Harbor, were prepared for diving operations.

Crews of two speed boats which caught the wreckage with grappling hooks said it was located in about 450 feet of water, much too deep for a diver to reach the bottom.

The crash was reported to have occurred 2 miles offshore. Maritime officials said it was probable that currents had drifted the wreckage inshore to the point where it was found today.

List of Missing Bodies.

The missing bodies were those of the following:

George Eastman, 29, cameraman.

Otto Jordan, 26, assistant cameraman.

Tom Harris, 25, property man.

Hank Johannes, 24, property man.

Ross Cook, 26, pilot.

Hallock Rouse, 29, pilot.

The bodies of the other three victims, Max Gold, 29, assistant director; Conrad Wells, 31, cameraman, and Ben Frankel, 26, assistant cameraman, were recovered late yesterday. They were found floating on the sea over the spot where the planes sank, having been thrown from the hurtling and flame-enveloped craft.

All the victims were employes of the Fox Motion Picture Studios, which was filming the grand finale of an airplane motion picture thriller.

All day also along the nearby shore and beach resort piers grief-stricken relatives waited for the sea to give up its dead. Mary Astor, widow of the film director, whom she married but a year ago, was under a physician's care in her home in Hollywood.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE is probably no more interested reviewer of the movies' big parade than Mr. Thomas W. Gilmer, of this city, whose observations have many times before found expression in this column. To usher in the New Year fittingly—and, if he but knew it, to lessen the wear and tear on a fragile temper on an harassed and much interrupted day—Mr. Gilmer indites another enlightening communication to this department, which I will take the liberty of quoting, in part:

"I have made a list of all the important movie actors of the silent screen who have appeared during the past twenty years. They number about 1,200. Of these 1,200 actors, 200 have in the last two years been transferred to the talking pictures. There are only about 250 important actors in the talking pictures at present.

"Of the 250, approximately 80 per cent came from the silent pictures and only 20 per cent from the stage.

"The motion picture personnel has the quickest 'turnover' of any industry in the world. They quickly lose popularity. Many of those who were apparently 'through' on the silent screen have scored successes since discovering the unsuspected possession of talking talent.

"What will 1930 do for, or to, the silent pictures?"

What silent pictures, Mr. Gilmer?

Word has just been received by Horace Heidt, who will continue through a second week with his Californians at the Fox, that his band has been accorded another European distinction by being chosen to play at the biggest social event of the season on the continent.

Upon the arrival of Mr. Heidt and his boys on the other side for their two-month engagement at the Monte Carlo Casino, they will appear first at the Bal Des Petits Lits Blancs, at the Opera, Paris—to be graced by the presence of President Doumergue, of France, ministers, marshals, deputies and members of the Diplomatic Corps.

The band sails from New York aboard the French liner Paris on Friday, January 24, and I hope Lobo, the intellectual police dog, has been sufficiently educated to know enough not to get seasick!

The Earle Theater is being converted into a sound-recording studio this week, according to advices just received by special mounted courier who arrived from the corner of Thirteenth street with his horse all afroth. He was all wet, too! The Earle customers, it seems, are to be given the opportunity to hear themselves cuss—or words to that effect.

This novelty presentation is the creation of Milton Davis, ace organist. In the course of a song-slide program the audience is requested to join in a vocal chorus. The voices of the audience are picked up by microphones on the Earle stage and recorded on a Speak-o-phone disk. The disk then is transferred to an Edison electrical reproducing instrument and played back to those who made it.

Who knows but that the stunt may turn up a voice to take the place of Mme. Alda's at the Metropolitan? Yeah, who?

And, speaking of Washington voices, a card from Kate Smith brings word that she, her mother and sister, Helene, are holidaying in Havana, Cuba, and having a perfectly superlative time, except that none of them can shake the habit of holding it under the table!

Next week's attractions, just to refresh the memory—if any: Palace, the Duncan Sisters and Lawrence Gray, in "It's a Great Life;" Earle, Billie Dove, in "The Painted Angel," RKO-Keith's, Bebe Daniels and Lloyd Hughes, in "Love Comes Along;" Rialto, Charles Bickford, Raymond Hatton and Fred Kohler, in "Hell's Heroes;" Metropolitan, 77 stars and 300 chorus girls, in "The Show of Shows;" Fox, Victor McLaglen, Fifi Dorsay and El Brendel, in "Hot for Paris;" Columbia, Ronald Colman and Ann Harding, in "Condemned."

Of the above all are holdovers—and well entitled to the honor—except the programs at the Palace, Earle and RKO-Keith's.

At the Fox, by virtue of an eleventh-hour booking coup, Horace Heidt and his Californians, the greatest novelty orchestra the Capital has ever heard, will continue, as I have said, to share the bill with "Hot for Paris."

An important innovation in the musical treatment of Universal talking pictures is inaugurated at the Rialto with the current engagement of "Hell's Heroes." Hereafter, every Universal feature will be provided with an atmosphere overture especially contrived to entice the audience into the mood of the picture before its actual screening.

Precisely as an opera is preceded by an overture which paints musically the dramatic story that is to follow, so the general musical director of Universal, David Broekman, has provided "Hell's Heroes" with an interpretative introduction. The overture opens with a trumpet call, developed into a noble melody for full orchestra that is significant of the heroic nature of the sacrifice to be made by the three pivotal figures in the drama. A new thematic strain is then introduced, based upon an old Western air, "Jesse James." The original motif is then again employed, but strengthened by a religious harmonization, corresponding to the dramatic church sequence that forms the tragic climax of the picture.

It is a thoughtful and effective embellishment.

So far, I have only broken one New Year resolution which, it seems to me, is doing pretty well. Come to think of it, that's all I made.

Motorists Expect Drop in Gas Price

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey Tells of Slash.

Gasoline prices in the Capital are scheduled to take a drop beginning Monday, possibly to ease the pain of personal taxes paid in advance before securing 1930 tags.

At any rate, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey operating in this area has announced that a reduction of 1.3 cents per gallon on both grades of gasoline sold will be effective Monday. If dealers carry this reduction through to individual customers, "straight" gas will be sold at 17.7 cents per gallon and high test gas at 20.7 cents per gallon.

The reduction of 1.3 cents is the first time the Standard has made a cut dealing in fractions of a cent and prices to customers are based on the supposition that the reduction will be handed down all along the line. The Texas Co. in Washington has announced it will meet any Standard cut, when and if made.

WILSON FOUNDATION SPONSORS MEETING

HOOVERS ARE INVITED

Dr. Charles Kingsley Webster will be the principal speaker tomorrow afternoon at the mass meeting to be held in the National Theater under the auspices of the Woodrow Wilson foundation committee. His subject will be "Woodrow Wilson and World Peace."

The meeting, scheduled to begin at 3:30 o'clock, will be presided over by Charles S. Hamlin, former governor of the Federal Reserve Board, who will introduce Dr. Webster. During his stay in Washington, Dr. Webster will be the guest of Dr. H. Barrett Learned, 2123 Bancroft place northwest.

Boxes for this meeting have been reserved for President and Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Reserve seats have been sent to members of the Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps, the Supreme Court and other prominent officials.

The executive committee in charge of the mass meeting consists of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Frederic A. Delano, Robert W. Woolley, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams, Frank S. Bright, Mrs. H. E. C. Bryant, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Dr. H. Barrett Learned and David Hunter Miller.

Dr. Webster holds the unique distinction of two full professorships in universities separated by the Atlantic Ocean—the Woodrow Wilson chair of international relations at the University of Wales and a chair of history at Harvard University.

During the World War Dr. Webster was intimately associated with the late Gen. Sir Henry Wilson. He attended the Paris conference in 1918-1919 and has been present at all opening sessions of the League of Nations assembly at Geneva during the last decade.

Car Fare Appeals To Be Heard Jan. 15

District Trolley Companies Desire Fares on 10-Cent Basis.

Justice Alfred A. Wheat in District Supreme Court yesterday fixed January 15 as the date for the hearing on the petitions of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. in which appeal is made from the order of the Public Utilities Commission denying them a 10-cent car fare.

The case was called yesterday morning, at which time Attorney G. Thomas Dunlop, representing the Capital Traction Co., expressed the belief that the petition of his client and that of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. should be heard together. Attorney S. R. Bowen, who represents the latter company, concurred.

Attorney Dunlop pointed out to the court that Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West would not be ready to proceed until January 13. Justice Wheat then fixed the new date. The first skirmish in the case will be in the nature of arguments on motions filed by the Utilities Commission to dismiss the petitions.

Widow of Policeman Awarded $60 Pension

A pension of $60 monthly was granted yesterday by the District Commissioners to Mrs. Iris Irene Kaylor, widow of Traffic Policeman Ross H. Kaylor, who was killed when his motorcycle collided with a street car while he was chasing a speeding automobile at Stanton Park on December 10.

Kaylor had been a member of the Metropolitan Police Department since December 16, 1924, being appointed to the motorcycle squad on August 1, 1927, and promoted to the rank of third-class private on December 7, 1927.

He was injured at about 6 o'clock on the morning of December 10, 1929, as he was pursuing a speeding automobile suspected of being a rum-runner, when his motorcycle crashed into the front of a street car in front of 510 C street northeast. Kaylor was rushed to Casualty Hospital, where he died about three hours later. His marriage to Iris Irene Pickell took place in Seattle, Wash., on June 16, 1928. There are no children.

CALIFORNIA HANGS TRIO FOR MURDERS

FIRST TWO DIE BRAZEN

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Three men died on the gallows in California today, Anthony Brown and Roy E. Stokes being executed at Folsom prison for participation in the fatal riot there on Thanksgiving Day, 1927, while Louis Lazarus, convicted Oakland bank robber, went to his doom at San Quentin Penitentiary.

Brown and Stokes, two of six convicts sentenced to death as ringleaders of the Folsom outbreak which cost eleven lives, exhibited an air of braggadocio up to the last and died unflinchingly. They refused the ministrations of the prison chaplain.

Lazarus walked upon the scaffold with a sickly smile on his face and appeared resigned to his fate. Through Rabbi Rudolph Coffee, of Oakland, he sent word to his mother that he went to his death smiling.

Lazarus, George Costello and William O'Brien were sentenced to death for slaying William McFarlin, a teller, in an attempted robbery of the Seventh Street branch of the Oakland Bank in 1928. Costello was hanged December 13 and O'Brien is awaiting decision on an appeal.

Before he died, Lazarus took full blame for the killing and said O'Brien "should not hang."

Brown entered the death chamber smoking a cigarette. He eyed the crowd of witnesses with a half-smile of disdain. His last words to the warden were "make it snappy."

Ten minutes later Stokes was brought from the death row. As he neared the chamber he smiled and turning to Warden Court Smith said in a loud voice:

Walter E. Burke and James Gregg are scheduled to hang at Folsom next Friday for their part in the 1927 riot.

Hefflin was arrested and booked at the First Precinct station on charges of reckless driving and driving without a permit. The two policemen charged that Hefflin made an improper turn at the corner against orders.

CHINA COURTS CODE SHIFT DUE IN SPRING

OTHER REFORMS HINTED

Shanghai, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister C. T. Wang today said the Nationalist government will push negotiations with other powers in the next few months in an attempt to end all extraterritorial rights of foreign nations in China.

These rights, involving the privilege of having their nationals affairs tried in China in courts presided over by their own countrymen, have been enjoyed by some countries more than eighty years.

Replies Called Satisfactory.

Speaking at a luncheon for foreign and Chinese newspapermen, Mr. Wang expressed satisfaction that unofficial replies of the American and British governments in China's extraterritoriality decree, made recently, had indicated their willingness to negotiate the question.

"What will perhaps make the year 1929 the most memorable," said the Foreign Minister, "is the graceful gesture of the powers concerned in agreeing to collaborate with China in reestablishment of her jurisdictional sovereignty over foreign nationals within her territory.

Mr. Wang expressed the hope that details of negotiatio might be arranged within a few months, "so that China's jurisdictional sovereignty may be completely restored immediately."

Other Reforms in View.

Indication that the Nationalist government would seek during the coming year to end other international agreements hampering its authority within China's boundaries, Mr. Wang said:

"It may be stated that other reaction will be taken up during 1930." straints upon China's freedom of action will be taken up during 1930."

Having put down mutiny and civil warfare during December, said the Foreign Minister, the Nationalist government begins the New Year in the strongest position of its brief existence.

Mother, Children Poisoned by Food

Family of Evangelist Here All Taken Ill Following New Year's Dinner.

Another case of holiday food poisoning was revealed yesterday when the District health officer was asked to investigate the mysterious illness of Mrs. A. Earl Kernahan, wife of a Methodist evangelist of 801 Butternut street northwest, and her four children, whose ages range from 4 to 16 years.

Two experts of the health office staff are analyzing samples of food eaten by the Kernahan family for its New Year's dinner.

Arriving at the Kernahan apartment yesterday morning to accompany Mildred Kernahan, 12 years old, to school, 13-year-old William Spencer, son of a neighbor living in the same building, was advised of her illness. He returned home and told his father, also a Methodist minister, who called at the Kernahan home and then notified the District health office.

The five members of the family were stricken shortly after midnight yesterday morning, it was stated. Although Dr. Kernahan complained of feeling ill, he did not let his indisposition interfere with his work, and left the city yesterday for an evangelistic tour. Other members of the family were reported as improved last night. The four children are Susanna, 9 years old; Gaylal, 4 years old; Mildred, 12 years old, and Earl, jr., 16 years old.

STOCK PRICES RISE IN QUIET TURNOVER

Steel and Motor Shares Record Moderate Advances.

FOREIGN ISSUES DECLINE

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—An uncertain, although generally upward, trend of share prices, and cheaper call money, characterized a quiet and cautious stock market today. Trading continued at a low ebb, the day's transfers barely exceeding 2,000,000 shares.

Call loans dropped from 6 to 5 per cent, and funds were available in the "outside" market as lo was 4½ per cent, while marked improvement in the money market has been generally expected after the turn of the year. Today's influx of funds was due primarily to the piling up of balances at the banks against dividend and interest checks, and could not be regarded as particularly convincing.

Further exports of gold to France, totaling $8,500,000, were reported, bringing the total outflow of the yellow metal on the current movement to above $110,000,000. Foreign exchange rates, however, were lower, the franc cable rate going below the point at which movement of gold from New York to Paris would be profitable. The additional exports are, therefore, believed to have been arranged previously, or represent other than private transactions for profit. Whether the lower exchange rates will halt the outflow of gold for long remains problematical, as exchange rates usually rise after the first of the year.

Trade Reviews Are Optimistic.

The weekly trade and industrial reviews stressed a moderate resumption of activity after the year-end inventory period, with the steel industry showing the most notable revival, influenced by good demand for railway equipment. Steel mill operations were reported at 50 to 85 per cent of a year ago.

The Southern Pacific Railway directors recommended an increase in authorized capital stock of more than 50 per cent. While this was explained as merely a step in preparation for future requirements, it was regarded as a further indication of confidence in industry and in eventual revival of the stock market.

Steel and railway equipment shares were favorably influenced, and recorded moderate gains. Furthermore, some of the motor shares were turned upward, incidental to introduction of new models at the forthcoming shows.

Such shares as American Can, American Locomotive, American Steel Foundries, American Tobacco, A. M. Byers, General American Tank, General Railway Signal, Hudson Motor, Johns-Manville, Lima Locomotive, Macy, Pullman, Colorado Fuel & Iron, Republic Steel and National Biscuit gained about 2 to 5 points.

Fox Film Gains 3¾ Points.

Fox Film was depressed to another new low at 16⅛, but rebounded to 22¾ in short covering and closed at 31, up 3¾ net.

United States Steel rose a couple of points, but closed up only 1¼. In the motors, Chrysler, Studebaker and Nash gained about a point each. There were a few soft spots. Continental Motors sagged to a new low on passing the dividend, and Brocway dropped 3 points, to 13, a new bottom.

Commodities were easy. Wheat futures sold off nearly 2 cents a bushel in sympathy with a sag at Liverpool and reports of large Russian offerings, but rallied and closed practically unchanged. Corn eased less than a cent. Lower prices at Liverpool also affected the cotton market, which closed 75 to 85 cents a bale lower.

Weakness in sterling carried foreign exchanges generally lower, but business was dull, and the decline appeared to reflect little more than uncertainty over the course of money rates, both in London and New York. Sterling cables dropped ¼ cent, to 84.87⅛. French franc cables sagged ⅛ cent, to 3.93¾ cents.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Cotton was lower today under liquidation or reselling by recent buyers who appeared to be influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables and the failure of recent rallies to attract more general demand. March contracts sold off to 17.25 in the late trading and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 15 to 17 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points in response to the easier showing of Liverpool. Offerings were not heavy but the demand was limited and the market worked quite steadily lower under liquidation which appeared to be combined with a little Southern, local and some foreign selling.

Trade buying was moderately in evidence on scale down and there was enough covering to hold the market fairly steady around 17.30 for March and 17.54 for May during the middle of the day. The demand was gradually filled up, however, and prices made new low ground for the day in the last hour under New Orleans, Southern and local selling which was supposed to include further liquidation by recent buyers. January sold off to 17.10 and May to 17.47 with active months showing net declines of 15 to 18 points. Closing quotations were at about the lowest.

No particular news appeared to be connected with the decline by local brokers unless it was the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and unfavorable trade reports from Manchester. Advices from the domestic goods market showed little or no change, and the report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics on the grade and staple of cotton ginned prior to December 1, came in for some bullish comment, which appeared to find little or no reflection in the immediate market, although it showed a larger percentage of untenderable cotton than last year.

There was further talk of possible shipments out of New York but nothing more developed in that connection, and according to some reports it was rather easier to buy spots from the South although no change was reported in the basis.

Liverpool reported Bombay liquidation and hedging in that market.

Exports today, 46,613, making 4,341,458 so far this season. Port receipts, 46,696. U. S. port stocks, 2,642,893.

BOND SALES MARKED BY SLIGHT RAIL GAIN

Industrials Advance While Utilities Experience Little Change.

LATIN AMERICANS RISE

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—A revival of interest in industrial bonds led to a general upward movement in this section of the list today.

Rails and utilities were slightly more mixed than yesterday, but maintained a firm position. Many of the senior loans in the carrier group worked higher.

Prospects of cheaper money brightened when call loans dropped from 6 per cent, the renewal rate, to 5 and this reduction, although without direct effect on bonds, nevertheless strengthened sentiment. Inquiry for high grade industrials was apparent early in the session and increased during the afternoon. At the close fair sized gains had been recorded by American Smelting 5s, Reading Coal & Iron 5s, Republic Iron & Steel 5½s, U. S. Rubber 5s, Western Electric 5s and other representative issues.

Rails Lead in Turnover.

Secondary rails showed moderate improvement and the largest turnovers of the day appeared in these issues. Miscellaneous railroad obligations finishing with fractional advances included Santa Fe general 4s, Rock Island general 4s, Pennsylvania general 4½s, Northern Pacific general 3s, St. Louis & San Francisco 4½s and prior lien 4s, Union Pacific 4½s, Western Maryland 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 6s, and Denver & Rio Grande Western general 5s. A few bonds, notably New Haven refunding 4½s, rose at least a point.

Dealings in the utilities proved to be small and only narrow changes appeared in the most active bonds, which included American Telephone debenture 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, New York Telephone general 4½s and New York Edison 6½s. Western Union 5s advanced 1⅛ to 103 6⅛s, Western Union 5s advanced 1¼ to 103, or half a point below the 1929 high.

Foreign Obligations Are Irregular.

Inquiry for foreign obligations tapered off and prices were rather irregular. Australian listings, British 5½s and Uruguay 6s showed an average gain of about ¾, while a few Latin Americans rose 1 to 3 points.

The United States Government department was unusually quiet and prices declined by minute fractions.

Convertibles had an irregular day. American Telephone 4½s, which are being converted in considerable amounts, closed 1¾ higher. Reading Coal & Iron 6s lost a point, and International Telephone 4½s gained the same figure. American International 5½s and Missouri Pacific 5½s eased.

Members of the syndicate, which is bringing out the $60,000,000 issue of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., 6 per cent convertible debentures reported that virtually the entire amount has been taken, although the loan is not to be publicly offered until next week. Subscriptions from the Middle West, it was said, were double those from the East. The issue is, of course, the new year's first piece of major financing.

BANK DEPOSITS HERE DECLINE $13,923,158

Six Institutions, However, Show Increases Since October 4 Last.

BUSINESS IN CITY GAINS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Holiday withdrawals, an unprecedented Christmas savings club outlay of $7,500,000 and the great stock market break in October and November, tore down local bank deposits from $269,625,193.90 on October 4, to $255,702,038.64 on December 31 the call of Comptroller of the Currency Pole revealed yesterday.

The total decrease of $13,923,158.26 was borne by all three banking divisions, total deposits of the twelve national banks, $135,062,272.86, presenting a decline of $7,965,314.16 from the last previous call date; those of the seven trust companies, $81,603,685.39, a recession of $3,032,836.71; and those of the 22 savings banks $39,036,180.39, a falling off of $2,924,907.49.

Every savings bank but one, the Prudential, registered a decrease in deposits, those of the exception, $352,785.07 being a $28,115.56 advance over those of October 4. Two trust companies showed gains, the Washington Loan & Trust Co. reporting deposits of $17,265,857.48, a $2,654,711.48 improvement over the prior call and the Munsey Trust Co. announced those of $5,092,971.08 which bettered those of the preceding date by $310,946.46.

Five Banks Have Increased Deposits.

Five national banks showing increased deposits as compared with those of the last call were the following: Commercial, $16,144,547.12, a gain of $170,064.40; Federal-American, $11,611,058.56, a gain of $510,638.80; Liberty, $3,367,464.08, a gain of 22,306.85; National Capital, $2,075,429.45, one of $342,474.14; and the National Bank of Washington, $8,529,525.03, a gain of $268,496.35.

The decrease in deposits had been expected generally, due, in addition to the causes enumerated, to the final internal revenue tax payment on December 15. Lower deposits are predicted for the entire country and locally; the $5,119,243.72 increase in October was difficult to surpass. A complete tabulated report of deposits of the 41 local banks given in response to yesterday's call is published elsewhere in this issue.

Reports by telegraph to Bradstreet's Journal from all of its offices in the United States, compiled on January 1, 1930, show that there were 19,703 business failures, with liabilities of $628,990,633, occurring in this country during the full calendar year 1929. There is here shown a decrease of 3.2 per cent in failures, but an increase of 21.4 per cent in liabilities, as compared with the full calendar year 1928.

Fewer Business Failures in 1929.

The 1929 total of failures was also smaller than in the calendar years 1927, 1926, 1924, 1922 and 1921, whereas liabilities, while in excess of 1928, were smaller than in any year from 1927 back to 1921, with the sole exception of 1925. The excess of liabilities in 1929 over 1928 was mainly due to heavy liabilities of banks suspending. December, 1929, failures were the largest since January of that year, and 9 per cent in excess of December, 1928, while 45 per cent ahead in liabilities.

Failures in Canada for the full calendar year 1929 totaled 2,092, with liabilities of $31,863,932, an increase of 11.6 per cent in number, but a decrease of 12.7 per cent in liabilities from 1928.

Washington trade volume improved 1.4 per cent from a year ago, according to a table dealing with business conditions in cities printed in the January credit and sales bulletin of the Bureau of Business Conditions, a division of Alexander Hamilton Institute, New York City. Local business conditions are reported as being fair by the bulletin, with a recent downward trend.

District Bank Deposits Gain 18.4%

Another table, presenting population and per capita bank deposits, shows a gain of 12.6 per cent in the population of the city from 1924 to the end of 1929 and per capita deposits as of July 1, 1929, of $443, a gain of 18.4 per cent in the period 1924-29.

Referring to Maryland, the publication states: "Business is running at a fairly good rate, although curtailment is noted in some lines—especially steel-mill activity. The canning factories have shut down for the year, thereby increasing unemployment. Retail trade for staples is ahead of a year ago, although luxuries are moving slowly."

"Virginia business in general is only fair. Retail trade for staples is above a year ago, while luxuries show a decrease in sales from the same period in 1928. November building activity in eight chief cities was 35.3 per cent lower than a year ago. With the larger tobacco crop and with prices slightly higher than a year ago, the income from this source will be greater. The crop is estimated at 118,320,000 pounds, as compared with 104,864,000 last year—an increase of 12.8 per cent. Cotton-mill activity for November increased 40.6 per cent over a year ago. This is in marked contrast to the decline in other States. Lumbering shows curtailment from last year."

Traction Firm's Net Income Gains.

The November statement of operations filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission by the Capital Traction Co. showed net income for the eleven months to be $494,739, a decline of $68,327 from the corresponding period in 1928. Net income for the month was $47,952, or $875 more than that for November, 1928.

Bond business improved on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, but the scant stock activity showed even further decline. Bond transactions totaled $12,600, or $8,400 more than the previous session, and the stock turnover was 74 shares, 13 behind Friday's aggregate. Capital Traction 5s were the favored bond issue, three lots totaling $6,000 selling at 91¾, fractional loss.

A new high total of stockholders was announced yesterday by the Associated Gas & Electric System. The figure 186,000 represents an increase of 120,000 from a total of 66,000 reported at the close of 1928.

Some interesting statistics were furnished on the wide geographical distribution of security holders. There are associated stockholders in each of the 48 States, in all the United States possessions, and in 26 other countries.

367,657 Surplus Freight Cars.

Class I railroads on December 15 had 367,657 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday, this being an increase of 7,410 cars, compared with December 8, at which time there were 360,247.

Surplus coal cars on December 15 totaled 112,990, a decrease of 2,257 cars within approximately a week while surplus box cars totaled 206,374, an increase of 9,041 for the same period. Reports also showed 25,398 surplus stock cars, an increase of 130 over the number reported on December 8, while surplus refrigerator cars totaled 11,541, an increase of 552 for the same period.

According to the weekly estimate of the National Coal Association about 7,600,000 net tons of bituminous coal were mined in the United States during the week ended December 28. This is a decline of approximately 3,500,000 tons from the production of the week before, due to Christmas holidays.

The quantity mined during the weeks ended December 14 and December 21, as reported by the United States Bureau of Mines, was 11,593,000 net tons and 11,156,000 net tons, respectively.

Another addition has been made to the personnel of the new Hemphill, Noyes & Co. investment office to be established here in the person of Robert K. Carpenter, who will be identified with the stock department of the office.

Mr. Carpenter has been in the investment business in Washington for the last five years, and until recently was associated with the offices of Eastman, Dillon & Co. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College.

HELPING AVOID THE MISFIT.

WHEN a student enters the Sullivan Junior High School he is rated in more ways than one. The marks obtained in the lower grades are good so far as they go, but they do not go far enough. They are supplemented by intelligence tests, physical examinations, tests of personality, behavior and deportment, and tests of social adjustments. Finally, an effort is made to help the student in the selection of a vocation and in training for that vocation.

In determining the pupil's intelligence, not one but a group of tests are used. There are several of these tests. One fits one type of mind and another some other type. To iron out these differences several tests are grouped into a bank of tests. By this means students are placed into eleven groups, as follows: Very superior to genius, superior to very superior, superior, bright to superior, strong average normals, normals bright, normal strong, over-age normals, normals under-age, slow over-age normals, backward over-age. Work is patterned according to the grouping.

The effort to train the mind as well as to fill it with information as carried out in the public schools has gone forward a mighty distance since the school methods of 100 years ago But that is only a part of the story.

Many men fail in life because of their personalities. Some fail because of their behavior and some because of emotional disturbances. The failure may be negative in character, resulting in nothing worse than misfits, inadequates and unhappy, discontented people. Out of it may come antagonisms, enmities toward society and even major criminality.

The latest thing in school development is recognition of deviation in personality early in life, and effort to train the child out of his difficulty based on the diagnosis. This activity takes the place of old time markings on deportment and old time disciplinary measures. This is one part of the response which the school is making to the cry of society for help against its enemies.

WILL CAUSE BAD HABITS.

W. H. M. writes: Is a teaspoonful of milk of magnesia taken in a glass of water every night harmful? Some people claim it dries the blood.

REPLY.

Repeated use of milk of magnesia does not dry the blood. It does cause the laxative habit and constipation.

Emerson Five 34-29 Victim Of Stenogs

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

ABILITY to cash in on its foul shots saved the Business High Basket Ball Team from absorbing a defeat at the hands of the Emerson Prep Five yesterday in the Ninth Street Gymnasium, as 14 of the free chances were converted into the same number of points, materially aided the Stenogs in their 34-to-29 victory.

Although getting off to a 14-to-2 lead in the first twelve minutes of play, the Business Five was hard-pressed for the remainder of the half, and after again going into a substantial lead of 27 to 10, the Stenogs were once more threatened by an Emerson attack which carried that team to within 4 points of the home team's total. Numerous chances at the 15-foot mark, however, gave the Woodworth-coached team opportunities by which it was ever able to draw away from a dangerously close lead.

Teams Finish With 4-Man Each.

The sportsmanship of Coach Woodworth made possible the sight of only eight men on the floor at the end of the game, as after Coach Sanborn was unable to replace Jack Forney, who was banned late in the game as the result of personal fouls, Woodworth withdrew Loftus from the Business Team, to leave that aggregation on a par with its four-man foe. Numerous fouls hurt the Prepmen's chances throughout, and several technicals called on the individual Prep players, as well as one on Sanborn for talking to the referee, gave the winners numerous points.

But two of the Stenogs' 16 free tosses were "blown," so accurate was their eye from the free zone. Little Bobby Lucas led the parade with 7 straight foul shots, while Capt. Nate Newman came through with four in addition to his five double-deckers. Jack Forney, crack center of the Prepmen, played a bang-up game, coming through with three long shots all bordering on the sensational, to lead his team in scoring. Had it not been for Forney the defeat might have been worse.

Business Gains Early Lead.

The Business Team got off to a 9-2 lead within the first five minutes of play, but a spurt on the part of Emerson left that team only 6 points behind at half-time. Right after intermission, the Stenogs went on another scoring bee to gain a 17-10 advantage, but once again Emerson threatened.

The team-play of Newman and Lucas aided the Orange and Blue considerably, the latter continually "feeding" the ball to his captain who registered the points in rapid-fire succession.

Fighters Will Be Alone in Ring, Referee Outside, in Navy Bouts

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 3.—There will be no third man in the ring during the coming season of intercollegiate boxing at Annapolis, Lieut. Comdr. Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics at the Naval Academy, announced today. A proposal of the sort was discussed at the recent meeting of intercollegiate officials and Navy authorities have decided to give it a test. If successful, it will be continued at the Naval School, and probably will lead to other colleges adopting it, Lieut. Comdr. Reinicke said.

The Navy athletic powers believe that the plan has advantages such as giving spectators better view, and tends to promote cleaner fighting among the principals. There will be a referee for all contests, of course, but he will be stationed outside of the ropes, and call the "breaks" when necessary.

Discussing the plan, Reinicke said:

"The move has been made to make the boxing bouts cleaner, and to improve the ring discipline. If the boxers know that they're going to be separated by the referee, they will tend to hang on to each other, but if the third man is out of the ring, they will step back when they are told. In this way most of the lengthy clinches will be eliminated."

"Spike" Webb, who has achieved unparalleled success as coach of Middy boxers for ten years, heartily approves the plan. Webb said:

"It will make the boys fight a more open battle. All of the bouts in Europe are fought under the plan. There will be less clinching, and the boys will be more prompt in stepping back out of them."

The first meet in which the plan will be used comes on January 18, when the Tars put on the gloves with Dartmouth.

ROBINS' POST TO SPEAKER DENIED

Report of Change in Brooklyn Club Is Widely Refuted.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Publication by the New York Evening World of a report that Tris Speaker would become manager of the Brooklyn Club of the National League brought denials from various sources tonight.

The Evening World's story said that Wilbert Robinson, now president-manager of the club, would confine his attention to executive matters in the future while Speaker was directing the team from the bench.

Speaker, at Dallas, Tex., said it was "all news to him." He pointed out that his contract as manager of the Newark Club of the International League still had a year to run and that all his plans have been based on the assumption that he would spend the 1930 season at Newark.

"Stove League Stuff," Says Robinson.

Robinson, at Brunswick, Ga., said he had heard nothing of the report nor had James P. Sinnott, president of the Newark Club.

"Stove league stuff" was Robinson's answer to the report that Speaker would assume active managerial duties, while "Uncle Bobbie" would be connected with the club in a purely executive capacity.

"I'm president and manager of the club," Robinson said, when reached at his winter home here, "and I've heard nothing about any one else taking over the manager's job."

Pompano Is Granted Charter for Racing

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—A charter of incorporation for the East Coast Jockey Club, with domicile at Pompano, has been issued by the secretary of state, it was learned today.

SHIRES' BAN SPREADS TO 32 STATES

N. B. A. Takes Action After Alleged Try to "Fix" Bout.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—The pugilistic ambitions of Arthur Shires were checked abruptly here early tonight by the National Boxing Association which temporarily suspended "The Great One" from boxing in 32 States.

The association, however, made no attempt to quiet the verbal tactics of the White Sox boxer.

Stanley Isaacs, president of the association, announced the suspension. Isaacs' ruling came after a long-distance telephone call from James M. Brown, chairman of the Michigan State Athletic Commission. The latter told Isaacs that Shires was charged with fixing a bout with Battling Criss at Detroit last night.

Shires will be given a hearing before the Michigan commission on January 9, Isaacs said. The head of the national association declared that any ruling handed down by the Wolverine body would be approved by the parent organization.

Other Fights Have Been Called Off.

The "great one" had several fights scheduled between now and January 9, but he has been forced into temporary retirement by the National Boxing Association.

Brown informed Isaacs that Shires, through a representative, was alleged to have attempted to persuade Criss to take a "dive" in their bout, letting the White Sox first baseman win by a knockout. Shires denied the charge.

Isaacs also announced that the application of the Colorado Boxing Commission for membership in the National Boxing Association had been approved.

Carnera Bout Banned By New York Board

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission today denied the New York Coliseum the right to match Primo Carnera, the Italian giant heavyweight boxer, against Carl Carter, Chicago Negro, January 16. The sanction of the fight was turned down on the grounds that Carnera did not hold a license in this country.

Chisox Sell Mostil Outright to Toledo

Toledo, Ohio, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Johnny Mostil, one of the best known outfielders in the American League, is now a member of the Toledo Club of the American Association. Mostil was purchased outright today from the White Sox. Pitcher Dugan, for whom Manager Casey Stengel has been angling several months, also was released to the Mud Hens on option by the White Sox.

Mickey O'Neill Signs To Catch for Cards

St. Louis, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Mickey O'Neill, veteran catcher, has been signed by the St. Louis Cardinals, President Sam Breadon announced today. O'Neill has served with several major league clubs, both National and American, but in 1928 he was with Toledo of the American Association and last year he was with Louisville until sent to his home here because of an arm injury. He has recovered.

Capablanca Clinches International Title

Hastings, England, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—By winning his game with Sergeant, of London, in the eighth round of the international chess tournament at the Town Hall today, Jose R. Capablanca, of Cuba, made sure of the first prize regardless of the result of any of the games in the final round tomorrow.

The other prizes remain in doubt. Takacs, of Austria, was the only other winner today.

Lomski Loses Rosenbloom Battle

Scant Crowd of 8,500 Sees Fighters in "Rubber" Bout.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, N. Y., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Maxey Rosenbloom, the Harlequin of Harlem, played a leather overture in ragtime tempo on the head and body of durable Leo Lomski tonight to win the ten-round "rubber" battle of the prominent light-heavyweights in easy fashion before a scant crowd of 8,500.

There were no knockdowns as Slapsey Maxey, the new exponent of the late Harry Greb's windmill style of fighting, cuffed and battered the Aberdeen assassin all over the ring. The decision was unanimous with Rosenbloom winning every round.

Although eliminated from the New York State Athletic Commission's tournament to determine a successor to the retired Tommy Loughran because of recent defeat by Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo, Maxey outclassed one of the best of the present 175-pound crop, hitting Lomski at will and splitting both of Leo's eyelids in the second half of the skirmish. It was the fourth meeting of the pair, Rosenbloom now boasting two decisions while Lomski has won one bout. A fourth encounter was a draw.

Lomski Fares Badly at Infighting.

Lomski never quit his game, charging efforts to reach the bouncing Rosenbloom, but he could do nothing at close quarters and rarely reached Max's head with either hand. He made his best showing in the eighth round, digging several hard rights into the New Yorker's body.

The blond Westerner was helpless at times as Rosenbloom heaved punches to the head like a catcher throwing to second base. Occasionally, as Lomski charged, Rosenbloom stepped back, swung an overhand right to Leo's head, and invariably the Aberdeen Pole stumbled all the way across the ring before recovering his balance.

George Davis, Los Angeles; John Miller, San Gabriel, Calif.; Ralph Sonehouse, Indianapolis; Ted Carnes, Los Angeles; John Rogers, and H. H. Long, both of Denver, tied for third with par scores of 72.

A number of the outstanding players are not scheduled to tee off until tomorrow. The 64 low scores and ties will tee off Sunday on the final 36-hole play.

3 Pro Golf Pairs Tie Mark in Miami Event

Miami, Fla., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Three pairs of professional golfers tied with 68s today for first place in a professionals' best ball tournament that was curtain raiser for the annual Miami open golf tournament tomorrow and Sunday. Jock Hutchison, Chicago and Nassau, and George Howard, Canton, Ohio, made up the first pair to report 68s for the eighteen holes of tourney play. Shortly afterward, Art Weber, Elmwood, N. J., and Al Heron, Reading, Pa., turned in another best ball 68 with Fred McDermett, Indianapolis, and Laurie Ayton, Chicago, cutting corners to poll the third 68 of the day.

Eddie Lund, Fairfield, Conn., and Charles McAlister, Queens, Long Island, were on the card for fourth money with the only 69. Gene Sarazen, defending champion in the Miami open, and Bill Pairman, Miami, were out of the money with 70s. They tied with several other teams.

Final arrangements for the opening of Florida's winter series of golf tournaments with the Miami open tomorrow were completed today. Out of the record-breaking entry list of 125, 119 were on the scene.

Athletics and Cubs Appear Capable Of Repeating in 1930 Races—on Paper

Cleveland, Detroit Well Equipped for Hard Fight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (N(Y.W.N.S.) With two championship clubs, which won their pennants in such hollow fashion that the gasping fans were asking in September why both were so underestimated in May, still further strengthened and bolstered in weak spots, there does not seem room for any widespread of predictions as far as the playing season of 1930's diamond span is concerned.

If history repeats, as it has always been known to do, there may be a pair of clubs, unsung and unthought of, which may crash to the top in the next year's play, but now it looks like a good bet the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago Cubs will continue where they left off in their spread-eagling dash of last July, August and September.

The trouble in baseball is that you never can tell. The uncertainty of the every-day game in which the battle is never over until the last man is out in the last inning, works on into the play of a week, a month, or a season. The last-place Boston Braves of July were the winners of a pennant in October in 1914 from a New York Giants team which had won three pennants.

Yanks, 7th in 1925, Won in 1926.

The seventh-place Yankees of 1925 were the winners in 1926. The pages of diamond history are studded with the chronicles of the sudden fall of the haughty and the sudden rise of the toiling, fighting under dog.

The "hope that springs eternal" which made the Mudville crowd hang on to watch the immortal Casey is the reason why in fourteen baseball camps in this land there is the "Oh, I don't know" feeling, and why the interest in the races of 1930 promises to be keen and pulsating and pushing eager crowds promise to be as large as ever.

It is true that the thundering herd of Athletics, patiently developed through weary years of waiting by Connie Mack, will be the same—or even better on paper—as the team which ran away from all opposition and practically ended the baseball race in the American League in July.

Mr. Mack is not changing his outfield of Simmons, Haas and Miller. He announces that he will keep Jimmy Foxx at first base, and he had still Bishop at second, Boley at short stop, and Dykes at third.

Mack Has Youths Ready.

He has added to that infield with a youngster named McNair, a brilliant minor league short stop, and Keasey, a first baseman some time with his club and now judged properly seasoned. In case of injuries he can shift that infield in several places and still present a strong front. He is a great believer in reserve strength.

There has been no word that Mack has parted with Bob Grove, or Rube Walberg, or George Earnshaw, his three great aces of 1929, or even that Howard Ehmke, Bill Shores, Jack Quinn and Eddie Rommell of his second file of pitchers have been sent away.

And he has added to the shiftiness of his catching department by the addition of Wallie Schang to help the wonderful Mickey Cochrane and the steady Ralph Perkins.

So the A's can be said to be "set." But other teams have made improvements. The Cleveland Indians, really the American League surprise of 1929, will be better equipped both in the infield and in the pitcher's box than last year. And they will have more hitting strength.

Tigers Being Jockeyed By Harris.

The Detroit Tigers are being jockeyed by a master jockey, Stanley Harris, who won two pennants with the Washington Nationals—not a great team—in 1924 and 1925. Give Harris what he had then—a standout pitcher like Walter Johnson—and the Tigers will be heard from. They already have in Charlie Gehringer the coming star infielder of the league.

The New York Yankees are still too uncertain in their possible line-up for a fair estimate of their chances of regaining the heights they reached in 1926, 1927 and 1928. Stricken by the death of a great manager, Miller Huggins, the big machine of two years ago must be managed by a young man in his first effort as a big league manager—Bob Shawkey, great as a pitcher, but still to win his spurs as a leader.

There is the gamble that Babe Ruth will keep on the great pace he has held so wonderfully for ten years, and another gamble that the pitchers, many of whom ought to be top-notchers, will reverse the showing of 1929, when they were failures, more or less.

Browns Have New Manager.

The St. Louis Browns have the handicap of a new manager, but a well-balanced team, perhaps strengthened by the acquisition of Hale of the Athletics at third base. The Chicago White Sox, even with The Great Shires, are in a formative period with another new manager—although a veteran—Donie Bush.

The Washington Nationals may upset the dope.

The Chicago Cubs, with the millions of William Wrigley shrewdly used by William A. Veeck and Joe McCarthy, have endeavored to make assurance doubly sure.

They have bought what the bitter world's series expefience showed they needed the most, an experienced third baseman—Bell, of the Boston Braves—and they have added to their pitching and catching strength without affecting the line of long-distance hitters, led by Rogers Hornsby and Hack Wilson, which battered to the National pennant. The Cubs is not an aging club.

But it is certain they will face more spirited opposition than the Athletics. It has been the history of the major leagues for the past ten years that the National was the better balanced. The National has had few "super" teams.

Six Great American League Teams.

The American League has had six—the Yankees of 1921, 1922 and 1923 and again the Yankees of 1926, 1927

Steel Shafts Popular in Britain With Scarcity of Good Hickory

ACTION of the rules of golf committee of the Royal and Ancient in deciding to lift the ban on the use of steel-shafted clubs in Great Britain has brought relief to the golfing world. Lack of first-class hickory with which to make wooden shafts is advanced by George W. Greenwood in the London Daily Telegraph as one of the main reasons for the Royal and Ancient's ending of its long opposition to the steel shaft.

"Steel-shafted clubs have been legalized in the United States and Canada for some years, and the past policy of the R. and A. has been to allow steel shafts in those countries coming under its jurisdiction where for climactic or other reasons it has been difficult to obtain and keep good hickory shafts," says Greenwood. "St. Andrews has come to the conclusion that so far the introduction of steel shafts has not been productive of any harm to the game in the countries where they have been permitted."

"There is a feeling among golfers that steel-shafted clubs are an aid to increased length of shot. In a sense they are right. My own experience of a steel-shafted driver which Leo Diegel sent me from America a few weeks ago is that, all things being equal, it is possible to get an additional 10 to a dozen yards; not much, it is true, but vastly important at a two-shot hole.

"The greatest advantage arises in the shot, which is not struck in the middle of the club, but either on the toe or on the heel. I have definitely come to the conclusion that the margin of error with the steel as compared with the wooden shaft is reduced considerably; in other words, the rank bad shot with the latter is transformed with steel into merely an indifferent shot because of the absence of torsion.

"This, obviously, is a matter of importance, and one carefully to be considered. In this connection it is not inappropriate to destroy a prevalent idea that a steel-shafted club will drive the ball 40 to 50 yards farther. Nothing so delightful is experienced."

Boston Boxer Breaks With Promoter

Garden Fails to Bind Miami Match After 2 Conferences.

Griffiths Unsuitable as Foe; Carnera May Meet Campolo.

By WILLIAM R. KING.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey severed all relations with the Madison Square Garden Corporation here today when, according to Johnny Buckley, his manager, the Boston heavyweight emphatically refused to participate in the Miami bout which the New York organization planned for February 27.

Sharkey and Buckley held two long conferences with William F. Carey, the Madison Square Garden head, and they became hopelessly deadlocked when, as the manager expressed it, "Carey tried to cram Tuffy Griffiths down Sharkey's throat."

Although Sharkey's contract with the Garden, which expires on March 15, calls for a percentage, Buckley said his heavyweight refused to even consider Carey's offer of a flat $100,000 guarantee to fight Griffiths.

Would Fight Either Scott or Campolo.

Sharkey, according to his manager, told Carey he would take either Phil Scott or Vittorio Campolo as a Miami opponent and when they were refused him he abruptly ended the negotiations and told Carey he would not fight again until next June, when he expects to meet Max Schmeling in a milk fund bout in New York or Chicago.

Sharkey's refusal to fight, however, did not deter him from leaving here tonight for Miami with his wife, three children and grandparents for a six weeks stay. He already has rented a cottage at the Florida resort and planned his trip several months ago.

When Carey and his party, which included Frank Bruen, general manager of the Madison Square Garden, and Tom McArdle, his matchmaker, left for New York early tonight, one of them intimated that the Garden did not intend to abandon its Miami plans because of Sharkey's refusal and that Carey probably would announce a Campolo-Primo Carnera bout for its new Florida arena within a few dys.

Buckley Is Bitter Against Garden.

Buckley appeared bitter against the Madison Square Garden powers and had much to say about the unsuccessful negotiations. Carey, however, refused to comment about the proceedings.

Buckley charged the Garden powers with attempting to make his boxer a "chopping block."

"Sharkey is through knocking down every unsuitable opponent that the Madison Square Garden digs up for him," he said.

Sharkey's chief objection to Griffiths, Buckley said, was the Chicago battler's lack of aggressiveness. "Jack believes that 'Tuffy' would not make a fight of it and he realizes that his prestige would be seriously damaged if he engages in another bout like last winter's affair with Young Stribling."

Segrave Declines Offer To Compete at Miami

New York, Jan. 3 (A.P.).—Sir Henry Segrave, British speed demon, has declined an invitation to participate in the limited class international speed boat races at Miami, March 25 and 26, C. F. Chapman, secretary of the racing commission of the American Power Boat Association, announced today.

Although Sir Henry is coming to this country next month on a short business trip he will not bring a boat and plans no racing, Mr. Chapman said. Previously the English sportsman, who holds the world's automobile straightway speed record, withdrew from the International Gold Cup race at the Miami regatta where he was to have opposed Gar Wood, but will return with Miss England II to compete for the Harmsworth trophy at Detroit late in August. While here next month he plans to go to Detroit to look over the course and arrange for housing his Harmsworth challenger.

Seek Release From S. A. Division

Teams Want to Play in Tourney Sponsored by Post.

County Clubs Plan to Draw Up Petition Next Week.

FEARFUL that they may be excluded from competition in the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament to be conducted in March under the auspices of The Washington Post, officials of leading teams of Prince Georges County are taking steps to petition the South Atlantic body of the American Athletic Union for their release from the jurisdiction of that body in order that they may become affiliated with the new District organization in time to enter the 1930 court tourney.

Mrs. Sarah Kaske, treasurer and prime mover behind the Brentwood Hawk Five, which last year figured prominently in the local South Atlantic eliminations, is enlisting the interest of other Prince Georges County teams in a movement to present a united petition to the organization which has headquarters at Baltimore.

Meeting Planned Next Week.

A meeting of prominent unlimited teams and other county teams interested in aligning with the District A. A. U. body will be held early next week, Mrs. Kaske announced last night.

It is planned to request the South Atlantic body to release the petitioning teams from the jurisdiction of that body on the grounds that they are so geographically located that they are in closer contact with that section under the supervision of the District A. A. U.

The petitioning group will point out that the teams asking their release have previously competed in the Washington tournament of the South Atlantic body and naturally are more interested in competing here.

It is planned to call attention to the fact that more teams would be able to compete in the District tournament than would enter the South Atlantic tournament. It is doubtful if any of the Prince Georges County teams would be interested in playing in the tournament to be held at Baltimore.

All Teams Invited To Petition.

The Brentwood Hawks, Dixie Pigs, Berwyn A. C., Company F, Laurel A. C. and other unlimited teams will be requested to join in petitioning the South Atlantic body for release.

The task of securing their release from the South Atlantic body is the major problem confronting the Prince Georges County teams which were not included in the territory allotted the District organization. If the South Atlantic body acts favorably upon the petition the teams will be able to register with the District body in time to enter the approaching tournament.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT R. COLLYER

MORE gumbo. Down at New Orleans where the crawfish "kraw" and "John Promising" presides, the happy chatter for today is none other than UNCOMMON GOLD to bring home all the "jack." Personally—all things considered—I believe this one stands out six and one-half points. The battle for the place should be a bit more interesting with CALF ROPER and WELLET battling the issue out. The latter is very consistent.

BROAD AXE, which has been showing a flash of his best form—in recent private trials—is given the call in the sixth with BRIDEGROOM, SANFORD and COMET well bunched. The latter has not been racing to his best form, however, and in this connection, I know the stable has been betting on him.

The first of the Rancocas stars will be sent after the kale today in DONNAY. Recent work indicates he is on edge, as also HIGH SCORE, which by the way, is the choice of the clockers. That last winning effort was a bit above the ordinary. The THREE D ENTRY is right bang up. WITCHMOUNT, which by the way is a decided "Saturday horse," was the hottest kind of an overnight "tip." Now this thing dough talks louder than anything I know of. Ye-wekkum.

Over at Havana, CHANTRY which is named among the also eligibles, but which was heavily backed throughout the country last time, to beat even better horses, is the choice of the chief of staff with GARETH second.

For the edification of those who follow the "commissions" closely, there was "action" on both PRESIDENT SETH, also BOBINALONG—overnight.

CLOUD IDOLIZER, which seems to have taken on a new lease of life, is a standout in the third. Betting on this gee to cop the kale is like taking taffy from an infant. FINNSTER, BLUE FLAG and ROCK CANDY are closely bunched and follow in the order named.

MAINSHEET in the fourth, is another standout.

Down in Florida, the daily "on again off again" promise of a meeting at Pompano is wafted northwards. Inasmuch as there appears little or no stability to the menagerie, it will not be recognized by this bureau.

PHOENIX PLAYS TONIGHT.

The Phoenix Club court team will meet the Press Club Cardinals tonight at 9 o'clock in the Eastern High School gym.

G. W. BOXERS MAKE DEBUT ON JAN. 18

Franklin and Marshall Team to Be Met in Opener Here.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY will make its bow in intercollegiate boxing competition on January 18 when the ring representatives of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., will meet the Colonial mittmen in the H street gymnasium. This match was recently scheduled and gives the Colonials a program of six matches in their first season.

Coach Bucky Green has been working the G. W. fistic devotees during the holiday perion, which closes today, and has picked the squad from which he will draw the regulars. Some of those named in the group have no others with which to contend for positions, and therefore will likely appear in each match. Of this class are Max Jeweler, bantamweight; Harry Kleiman, featherweight; Bud Terry, welterweight; John Duffalo, light-heavyweight, and Bill Oeschlager, heavyweight.

Coveleskie Rated Highly by Coach.

Coveleskie, who has been a leader among District amateur lightweights for the past three years, can easily hold his own in the welterweight division, in the opinion of Coach Green. This lad ordinarily has to work off a few pounds in order to get under the lightweight limit, so by abstaining from reducing drills he could enter the welterweight class at full strength with fair chances of success, says the coach.

The feature of the Colonials' ring campaign will be the match with Catholic University at the latter's gymnasium on February 5. Catholic has a fine team, according to reports. Other matches will be fought with Washington and Lee, January 25, at Lexington, Va.; Manhattan College, February 22, at George Washington; Coast Guard Academy, February 29, at New London, Conn., and Penn Military Academy, March 8, at Chester, Pa.

Central, Eastern Fives Play on Foreign Floors

Two high school court teams will see action today but both games will be played on foreign floors. Eastern High's five will go to York, Pa., for a game with the York High five there, while Central's group of tossers will invade the University of Pennsylvania tonight for a game with the freshmen aggregation of that school. Western's proposed game with the George Washington University yearlings failed to materialize.

Central and Eastern, slated to oppose each other in one of the two opening games of the inter-high series, will be getting in their last licks for the inaugural. For Central, it will be the last game before entering the championship race, while Eastern will play the Potomac Boat Club five on Monday.

Isherwood Pair Wins In Temple Elimination

Honors in the Northeast Temple Elimination Bowling Tournament last night went to two members of the Isherwood Team of the Eastern League, when Paul Brill won the championship flight with a set of 594 over H. B. Lovett's 485, and J. Barnes took the consolation prize from Tony Leone by outrolling the latter, 535-500.

Brill and Lovett won the right to roll in the finals by defeating Honey and Mischou in the semifinal rounds. Brill's 571 topped the quartet, while Lovett scored 536. Mischou and Honey scored 561 and 519, respectively.

Saxty and Hayne were the two eliminated in the semifinals of the consolation flight. Barnes and Leone rolled 511 and 500 to outscore Saxty's 489 and Hayne's 483.

BLUE RIDGE'S PARLEY IS AWAITED

Status of "Farms" to Be Known at Meeting This Month.

Special to The Washington Post.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 3.—With the arrival of the New Year and the annual meeting of the Blue Ridge League not far in the distance, baseball gossip in the Tri-State district is once more forcing its way to the front and occupying the position it held at the advent of the 1929 football season last fall.

Within the ensuing several days President J. Vincent Jamison, jr., is expected to fix the date of the meeting, which is scheduled to be held in this city. It is likely that the meeting date will be about January 25.

Pandom now is eagerly awaiting the meeting to hear some plans about the approaching season. Some of the big league clubs which operated farms in the loop last year have not yet made any definite announcements about taking up where they left off last September. Neither have these clubs said anything about abandoning their farms. Consequently officials of the league believe that the five clubs which were under the control of the big fellows last year will be found in the same category when the next season gets under way. The sixth club, Hagerstown, will be under private ownership, Joe Cambria, of Baltimore, having recently taken over the franchise, according to an announcement made in the home of the Hubs.

New Ownership Is Boon to League.

The coming of the Baltimorean into the Ridge loop as a mogul makes the future look considerably brighter, in the opinion of those in close touch with the league's affairs. It makes baseball in the biggest city in the league a certainty for another year at least, whereas it was very much of an uncertainty prior to the time Cambria made his decision. Despite the fact that the Hubs won the pennant last year they experienced trouble in completing their schedule. The Herald-Mail Publishing Company, about the middle of last July, took over the club after it had experienced rough going as a community proposition, and ran it the remainder of the season.

Hagerstown is a good baseball town and has been a wonderful help to the Blue Ridge wheel ever since Vincent Jamison, Lewis Thompson, Max von Schlegell, Frank Schmidt, "Pop" Henninger, Ira Plank and several others organized it back in 1915. It has a population of 35,000 and has several small towns within a radius of 20 miles of it. Up until 1929 attendance in Hagerstown had been exceptionally good and some veteran observers believe that the falling off was due almost entirely to the Hubs being the only club not looked after by the boys under the big tent. These same observers believe interest will pick up with private ownership.

Kelliher's Status Uncertain.

The new owner of the Hubs has not yet announced his plans for their operation, but is expected to be present at the league meeting and deliver an address. The Hubs have several valuable players on their reserve list with which he can form a nucleus for next year and no doubt Cambria has a number in readiness in Baltimore. Whether or not he will re-sign Manager Mickey Kelliher is very problematical. Kelliher claims to have his release and if such is the case it may be that he will not be offered terms to pilot the Western Marylanders again.

If Kelliher passes out of the Blue Ridge picture only two of last year's pilots will be back. They are Dan O'Leary, of Martinsburg, and Bobby Wells, of Frederick. Tom Clark, the Chambersburg skipper, has accepted a coaching position with the New York Giants; Josh Billings is out at Waynesboro, and Bob Prysock has been granted his release at Hanover to allow him to accept a managerila berth with Wheeling in the Middle Atlantic League.

Penn State Five Opens Tonight With Bethany

Special to The Washington Post.

State College, Pa., Jan. 3.—Penn State will take its first look at the 1930 basket ball combination tomorrow night when the Lion cagers open their schedule against Bethany College. The Lion team this season will be made up almost entirely of new material, only two lettermen being among the candidates on hand this winter.

It is possible that the Lions will have an entirely new set of passers on the floor at some stages of the game since Jack Mazess will be the only letterman available. Should Mazees fail to start the game or be removed at some time during the playing, the burden will fall entirely upon untried players. Capt. Neil Stahley, the other letterman on the squad, will not be able to take part in this game since he is with the all-East Football Team now on its way back from San Francisco.

While he has not selected a starting combination as yet, Coach Hermann will pick his team from Mazess, Fry and Leyda, forwards; Hamilton and Brand, centers, and Lee, Weber and Moss, guards.

Col. Minton, 79, Dead; Known for Show Stable

Barbourville, Ky., Jan. 3 (A.P.)—Col. T. W. Minton, 79, owner of the nationally known Hickory Mountain Show Horse Stable, and president of the T. W. Minton & Co., million-dollar golf stick manufacturing plant here, died at his home today after an illness of three days.

Col. Minton operated a hickory milling company at Lebanon, Ind., and established the Cave Hill Stock Farm before coming here fifteen years ago. The Barbourville plant was built three years ago. He was a native of Wood County, Ind.

The Hickory Mountain Stable of 80 horses includes several grand championship winners. His stallion, The Feudist, was national champion before he was retired three years ago. Col. Minton was a charter member and director of the American Saddle Horse Breeders Association.

He is survived by a son, Robert B. Minton; a daughter, Miss Nola Emily Minton; a brother, J. J. Minton, Okemah, Okla., and four sisters, including Mrs. William Bonnlefield, Okeman, and Mrs. Basil Carr, Cascade, Mont.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home Sunday, with burial in the Barbourville Cemetery.

Navy Awards Varsity Letters to 24 Gridmen

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 3.—Fifty-two midshipmen qualified for major awards as a result of their work during the late varsity football season, according to an announcement made by the Navy Athletic Association. Of this number, 24 will receive the varsity "N," while 28 were awarded the "NA," the latter being the outstanding members of the "B" squad, or shock troops.

STUDY URGED OF MAT CODE

Lehigh Coach Points Out Rule Changes to Be Watched.

Special to The Washington Post.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 3.—Careful study of the entire code is a suggestion to member coaches of the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association made by Coach Sheridan of the Lehigh University Team, pointing out some technical changes in the National Collegiate Athletic Association rules which might be easily overlooked.

"It is generally known that the regulation period of the bout is ten minutes; that the order of the bout calls for each wrestler going to the mat, alternating in turn, if they remain on their feet during the first two minutes of the bout, and that the new division is the 165-pound class," stated the dean of collegiate wrestling mentors, "but I have found some other changes which, although technical in nature, are of vast importance to the coach and wrestler."

New Scoring Method Is Urged.

One in particular referred to by the coach and which, however, prevails only in dual meets, has to do with the scoring. Heretofore, when wrestlers went to the mat, the one scoring the first fall was credited with winning the bout and 5 points. Under the N. C. A. A. ruling it is possible for both contestants to contribute points to their team.

Should the one contestant score a fall in the first of these ordered bouts on the mat and by a shorter time period than the other contestant, the latter's bout goes the full four minutes, and if each scores a fall the points are credited 5 and 3, with the greater value to the grappler scoring a fall in the shortest length of time. This method of scoring promises to have a vital bearing on the team total.

Carnegie and West Va. Fives Clash Tonight

Special to The Washington Post.

Morgantown, W. Va., Jan. 3.—A plaid five from Carnegie Tech, reputed to be stronger than most previous Tartan outfits, will be the opponent for the West Virginia University Mountaineers in the latter's second game of the season tomorrow night. The Mountaineers and the Tartans will open the battle for "Big Four" honors, the championship of the leage which includes Pitt and Washington and Jefferson in addition to tomorrow evening's Mountaineer field house opponents here.

The West Virginians opened their 1930 court campaign with a loss to the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers, although the veterans, Capt. "Little Sleepy" Glenn, Truehart Taylor and Emory Lepera, forwards, and Lawrence Plaster, George Ratcliffe and Eddie Fox, guards, showed good form. This nucleus of experienced material was augmented by the good all-round play of Eddie Bartrug and Eddie Cubbon, two comparatively inexperienced center men.

Tech has been under the tutelage of a new system taught by Coach Ralph Hogan, former Iowa star, and with a good veteran contingent to work with, has had little difficulty in its first two games thus far this season.

N. Y. U. Chief Threat To Navy Gym Hopes

Annapolis, Jan. 3.—The Navy gymnastic team is on the verge of ushering in the 1930 season and it is anxious to duplicate its feat of last year, that of winning the intercollegiate championship. The competition will be keener than last year, due to the addition of New York University to the Gymnastic League. This team has as one of its members Herman Witzig, star of the recent 1928 Olympic team.

The Navy team lost some very good men last year through graduation. Galbraith and Adamson, rope and horse champions, won every first place during the season in their respective events. McElroy, another rope climber, averaged a second place in every meet for the season. Then Perreault, utility man, scored points in every meet, including the intercollegiates. These four men amassed 116 points of the total of 261 scored by Navy during the season. Their accomplishment represented about 44 per cent of the season's work.

The possibility of developing rope climbers will depend on the ability of Larson, Jett, Canaday, Corey and Harrell, all of last year's squad. King, a new man in this event, looks very promising. For the past eight years Navy has excelled in this event, and "a five-second man" is predicted for this year.

Rowe Back to Coach North Carolina Boxers

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 3.—Crayton Rowe, who coached the Tarheel boxers to two Southern Conference crowns, is back on duty this year after being away a year managing a stable of professional boxers. Rowe thinks prospects are decidedly good again for this year, with four lettermen in the camp, and experienced candidates for all posts but the bantamweight.

Florida Has Abundance Of Boxing Material

Special to The Washington Post.

Gainesville, Jan. 3.—Florida has sufficient boxing material to maintain two fairly strong teams, in the opinion of Coach John Piombo.

Capt. Phil O'Connell and Ray Carter, both lightweights, give Florida a pair of exceptional ringmen. O'Connell won the Southern Conference feather title last year, but increased weight has forced him into the next division.

Leading bantamweights include George Dykes and John Minardi. Three promising featherweights are Owen Mikell, Marshall Flowers and Oscar Bisant. The welterweight laurels are being contested for chiefly by Clarence McLanahan and Buck Collier. In the middleweight division there are five prominent aspirants, Sam Slavin, John Shirley, Dick Ramsey, Tony Liber and Sam Pasco.

The veteran John Marsales hopes to clinch light-heavy honors, but in Bill Sult, the Florida boxing mentor, sees a rugged contender. Three very fine prospects in the heavyweight division insure Florida of strength in the unlimited class, Carlos Proctor, Joe Hall and Irving Ashkenazy.

Coach Piombo and his ring warriors will face the most extensive schedule ever mapped out for a Florida team. Bouts are scheduled with Virginia, Washington and Lee, North Carolina, Tulane, L. S. U., Citadel and Clemson. The North Carolina bout is slated for Gainesville February 15, and the Clemson bout for the campus on February 28.

Approximately threescore candidates for the boxing teams work out regularly. Some exceptional material is noted this year among the freshmen and prospects in the sport are regarded as very bright.

New York Auto Show Over Radio

Carlin Will Visit and Describe Every Booth at 5 P. M. Today—Lamont on WMAL—Post Brevities on WOL 8:15 A. M.

The 1930 automobile, of every size, make and description, will be visualized for radio listeners and car owners in every section of the country in a program to be broadcast directly from the Grand Central Palace, New York City, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The program, to be heard through WRC and 47 stations associated with the NBC system, will go on the air between 5 and 6 o'clock. Phillips Carlin will visit every booth in the exposition, accompanied by Miss Marcella Shields, describing every detail of the show.

Augmenting the words of Carlin and Miss Shields, a snappy orchestra under the direction of Andy Sanella, will accompany the couple on the tour, providing a musical interlude between visits to the various booths.

As a representative suite of dances in the modern manner, Walter Damrosch has chosen four numbers from the ballet divertissement of Saint-Saens' opera based on Shakespeare's "Henry VIII" to open the General Electric Hour at 9 o'clock through WRC. The symphony orchestra also features the overture to Wagner's "Rienzi," which is notable for a fine melody which foreshadows the later Wagner. The last movement from Haydn's "Symphony in G" and "Whisperings of the Flowers," von Blon, are the other selections. Floyd Gibbons will relate another "Adventure in Science" during the program.

B. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra will be heard at 10 o'clock, followed by an hour of slumber music, as follows:

Overture to "Zampa," Herold; selection from "The Geisha," Jones; "Eastern Romance," Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Wedding of the Rose," Jessel; "Melodie d'Amour," Shelley; "La Colombe," Gounod; "Romance," Gruenfeld; "Dearest Night," Bachelet; and "Dream On," Herbert.

Station WMAL will offer its listeners a speech by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, direct from 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. An hour later the station will transmit the ceremonies in connection with the unveiling of a tablet dedicated to Georges Clemenceau in New York City.

The Nit Wits will return to Station WMAL's wave length at 9 o'clock.

Taylor Gordon, author of "Born to Be," and a Negro spiritual singer of national repute, will sing, as guest, on the "Dixie Echoes" presentation at 8:30 o'clock from WMAL. "What You Gwinter Do When Yo' Lamp Burn Down" is the number Mr. Gordon has selected.

The Paramount-Publix Radio Hour will be presented from 10 to 11 o'clock, followed by an hour of dance music.

"Breakfast Brevities" from The Washington Post will be broadcast at 8:15 o'clock this morning over WOL. This is a regular week-day feature.

Walter T. Holt will present mandolin and guitar music from the station at 6 o'clock. A program of dinner music and the Silver String Revelers are among the other offerings.

WJSV has scheduled the Waikiki Harmony Boys, the Alexandria Humming Birds, Percy Silverberg, tenor; Pa Brown and the Little Browns and the Catskill Trio during the evening.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IT is evident President Hoover doesn't desire to play any favorites in the battle between the two chains. It looked some time ago as if Columbia were getting some of the better of it when the President delivered an address in a dedicatory program of their new building in New York and followed it by entertaining William S. Paley, Columbia's president, at the White House for luncheon.

However, the score was apparently evened this week when the President not only had M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., for dinner, but invited the N. B. C. executive to spend the night at the White House.

NATURALLY there has been considerable conjecture as to what President Hoover and Mr. Aylesworth may have discussed during such an extended session. The N. B. C. has a mimeograph for press purposes whose wheels can turn almost as fast as the one used by Representative Sol Bloom. However, following the Hoover conference nary a handout was received.

It is doubtful whether President Hoover discussed with Mr. Aylesworth the appointment of the five radio commissioners whose terms expire next month. However, Mr. Aylesworth may have told the President about the fight which he had recently with the commission over the attempt to limit the number of chain stations.

They more than likely talked over the plan for using radio in the public schools as being worked out by the United States office of education and a committee of which Mr. Aylesworth is a member.

A MATTER which they may have discussed was Mr. Aylesworth's long-time dream of establishing a great radio station in Washington which would be in keeping with the dignity and importance of the Capital of the United States.

It is believed before Mr. Aylesworth made such an investment as this, or even drew up plans for it, that he would want to learn to a certain extent what might be the possibility of his securing a cleared channel and permission to use sufficiently high power to justify the great expenditure which a station of such proportions as he doubtless has in mind would require. It is believed that if the N. B. C. received the necessary assurances from the radio commission they would lose no time in erecting the finest broadcasting station in America in Washington.

It has been suggested that Station WRC, now using only 500 watts, be synchronized with either WJZ or WEAF. If that were done in the former case, WRC could broadcast with 30,000 watts power, or in the case of WEAF, 50,000 watts.

The drawback to this plan, however, is that WRC would then have to broadcast the program of the station with which it was synchronized, thereby losing its identity as a Washington station. Also, there is some question as to whether synchronization has advanced far enough for this purpose.

Getting back to the N. B. C.-Columbia rivalry, Mr. Aylesworth has known Mr. Hoover for years and broadcast a number of his speeches, both during the campaign and previously, whereas Mr. Paley is new both to radio and to the President. Likewise Mr. Aylesworth has been a friend for many years of Lawrence Richey, one of President Hoover's secretaries.

IF there is a slump in the radio industry, it is not reflected by A. Atwater Kent, of Philadelphia, who, with sleeves rolled up and head over heels in work, says his factory is too busy to close down for the usual annual inventory. According to Mr. Kent he is confronted with an unprecedented midwinter demand.

FURTHER cooperating with radio listeners Edgar B. Calvert, chief of the Forecast Division of the Weather Bureau, has been instrumental in having weather reports broadcast over Station NAA at Washington at 10 p. m. immediately following the time signals. This is five minutes earlier than usual and cuts the time occupied by the weather reports and time signals down to a ten-minute period, from 9:55 to 10:05 p. m.

This was tried out the night of the Pan-American concert and worked so well that Mr. Calvert decided to make it permanent.

Several months ago, following criticism in these columns about the length of the weather reports, which formerly included distant parts of the country, Mr. Calvert ordered this report to include only Washington and vicinity and cut the time of delivery down to five minutes.

CONSIDERABLE satisfaction has been voiced over the manner in which Lloyd Yoder announced the play-by-play account of the New Year's Day football game between the University of California and Pittsburgh University at Pasadena, Calif.

A former gridiron star himself, Yoder interpreted the contest in a manner that apparently pleased the football fans. It was said that in previous nation-wide broadcasts of gridiron clashes a star announcer didn't know the players, and what he lacked in knowledge of players and plays he tried to make up for in exciting conversation.

By way of getting away from symphonies, for a change, Roxy's program tomorrow afternoon will be made up largely of ballet music.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Weakened Man-Power.

"DEAR MISS McDONALD—My husband has got into a great deal of debt by borrowing money on the furniture and property and personal notes. He told me when he induced me to sign the papers that it would enable him to give me some money each pay day but instead he has nothing to give me and he blames me when he is not able to meet payments. I am working and take care of myself and help him, but I notice that he never seems to care to take me out or to buy anything to brighten the home and never gives my daughter or little granddaughter anything. He continually tells me that if I would help him he could do something. When we were first married his salary was small, but now it is doubled. I am working and earn $90 per month and try to lay aside a little every month and that causes a fuss. He storms and raves!

"I have seen cases like this where the wife came to suffer when she became disabled. He spends freely and gambles, also plays the stock market. But he does not look out for the home as a husband should. Many times when he could pay on his debts he spends on himself instead. He refuses to carry a penny of insurance. I am sure my letter is far too long, but please give me your candid opinion.

Yours in haste. MRS. L. T."

Your husband is just what you have made him. You have assumed his obligations, listened to his whining and paid his debts. He being the type that can permit some woman to provide for him, has perfected the system by which he first extracted money from you, and has used it consistently and with complete success.

If you wish to correct your mistake start now to make him carry his own responsibilities. If he goes in debt let him pay, or suffer, but do not interfere. When he begins to cry for help turn on the radio or go out to a show and forget him. But stop doing the things that have made him what he is.

Married to some other woman, he might have been a passably good citizen. But women who support men, loan money to men, or assume the obligations of men, break down and weaken manhood. That is what you have done.

Women today are robbing men of virility through their readiness to pay a man's way through life, and future generations will pay for this departure from the normal.

Man should be the bread winner. One generation ago woman began to win her own bread. This generation is the result—men who not only do not provide for the women they marry, but who let those women provide for them. The sons of these people will be born mendicants, preying upon society, weaklings, parasite beings.

Not long ago in a group of young radicals just expelled from a well-known university because of their refusal to take exams seriously, one of them remarked that he thought the only really unforgivable indecency was working to live. These fellows enthusiastically supported him. Looking them over, from wispy hair to wrinkled socks, one could be forgiven for wondering why nature bothered to produce such waste matter. Limp hands hanging loose, dull eyes, sunken cheats and air for brains. What possible good can come of their existence? And they are a growing horde. Fortunately, they do not do much propagating, these limp mortals, by-products of a drifting age. Yet girls marry them and work to buy them cigarettes.

Will it take some cataclysm to put man back where he began, monarch of all that he surveyed?

Or will women do it by ceasing to change places with man?

WORK'S BRIDGE

MANY a Contract player who knows when and how to take out partner's No Trump with a suit-bid, is at sea when partner has bid a suit and he is anxious to take out by bidding No Trump.

It must be remembered as a general principle that a one No Trump bid over one of a suit is not an urge to the original bidder to advance either declaration. The one No Trump take-out usually is made for one of two reasons: When the original bid was a major, because of lack of normal support for it and no available take-out suit-bid; when the original bid was a minor, because 35 a trick looks better than 20. There is no necessity for the perplexity which seizes so many players when they find themselves in this take-out situation; a method of valuation has been worked out for their guidance.

One No Trump should not be bid over partner's one of a suit, the intervening adversary having passed, even with less than normal support for the suit, unless the bidding hand has a No Trump count of 7 with two other suits stopped, or a No Trump count of 6 with the three other suits stopped. When the original bid was a minor, and partner has normal support for it, a pass instead of a bid is optional with a count of 7 or 8 with two suits stopped, or with a count of 6 or 7 with three suits stopped; but with any higher count No Trump should be called over the minor even with normal support for the minor.

In applying the foregoing rules, the reader must not lose sight of three important considerations: (1) With only one suit stopped, an original suit-bid never should be overcalled with No Trump; (2) unless strong in the three unnamed suits it is better to take out partner's suit-bid with a major overcall, than to overcall with No Trump; (3) when the hand of the partner of an original minor bidder makes game in the minor look very probable, he should advance the minor rather than take out in another declaration.

Both of the following hands are examples of the minimum strength with which a No Trump bid should be made over partner's uncontested on Spade:

Jaré INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, Jan. 3.

THE modern idea of jewelry is a recognition of the fact that jewelry is for ornamentation. Strange how the truly modern ideas revert to the essentials! For jewelry was originally that—ornamentation, decoration. And then in the quest for new and different jewels, jewelry came to be an indication of wealth more than an ornament, and so very often forsook its artistic possibilities for more ostentation.

In modern jewelry we appreciate the fact that to be truly decorative and ornamental, jewelry does not have to be valuable. In fact, to properly complement a gown jewelry should be especially designed to be worn with it, and this would hardly be practical in expensive jewelry.

You find so much of this now, especially in the beautiful gowns and complementing jewelry worn for evening. Synthetic the jewels may be, but they can not possibly be accused of being imitation, because they do not seek to imitate anything! They are made by man and not by nature.

We are all for costume jewelry, have always liked it and shall always like it, and there you are!

• • • •

How would you like to make some most unusual and very effective and, oh, quite completely chic costume jewelry yourself? We had ideas—and oh, my, how they did work out! The smartest jewelry you ever saw, made out of button molds, cloth-covered to match your dress—well, just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you exactly how to make sets of costume jewelry, and see how easy it is to make them—and how truly smart they can be when they are made from our designs!

• • • •

No; every evening dress in the world is not long! There isn't one that is short, of course—that is, completely short all around—but you can have some shortness and some longness, don't forget.

And besides that, the very long ones can, oh, very indiscreetly but how charmingly, show a glimpse, a very unexpected glimpse here and there, of knee.

• • • •

We seem to be evening dress-ish today—but any one who has just seen the gor-lishious evening gowns that we just saw would be that way, too! Oh, yes, there were some we couldn't live without, and didn't even try to, and now we have to eat slam-handwiches until the next mail-boat arrives. But what did I start out on? Oh, yes, on trains—no, not the kind you think I mean. But the kind of trains that trail around Miladi's 7-inch heeled slippers these days. But we didn't get very far on that train, did we?

• • • •

Tomorrow's the day for the weekly Dare fashion letter. We suggest that you look for it in The Sunday Washington Post.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., and from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.

The astrological influences are uncertain in the a. m. on this date and you are advised to "lie low" until after noon. Be very careful to what you sign your name as trouble is augured through writing.

The children born on this date will be shrewd and clever and will desire to do things independently. They will love romance and adventure and will be extremely fearless. They will be full of love and affection.

You have an impetuous nature, and you do and say things on the impulse of the moment which you would not do or say on second thought. Time only will teach you that it pays far better to solve cross words than to utter them. To give a little understanding and sympathy is far wiser than to give "a piece of your mind." You unconsciously talk yourself out of many good things.

You are material in temperament and not at all interested in the spiritual side of things. The flesh pots decidedly appeal to you, and you would be unhappy without material pleasures and luxuries. You never worry about the problems and mysteries of life and you take life pretty well as you find it. You are a quick, but not a deep student. You have a brilliant, but not an analytical mind. Your memory is your greatest gift, and it often saves the day for you, because you do not have the patience to dig for things.

Owing to your disposition, you are inclined to make friends with everybody. You are truly democratic and you have never been accused of being a snob. Your marriage will probably be practical rather than romantic, and it will probably lead to happiness. You are very loyal.

Successful people born January 4:
1—Charles S. Stratton (Tom Thumb)—Dwarf.
2—John W. Hutchinson—Singer.
3—John Churchill Ainsworth—Portland, Oreg., financier.
4—Sir Isaac Pitman—Originator of shorthand.
5—Carter Glass—United States senator.
6—Blanche Walsh—Actress.

"Parking With Peggy"

"They say women have trouble getting over in the talkies, and I've a hunch it's because they all try to talk at once."

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk.

SNOWFALL isn't divided up evenly over this continent. In some places winter brings very heavy snowstorms, in other places there is no snow at all.

During my last visit to Yellowstone Park, one of the Government rangers told me that snow sometimes covers the park to a depth of eight or ten feet, and that there are drifts 30 or 40 feet deep. The men who take care of the park through the winter use snowshoes or skis.

In Mexico, California and Florida there are places where snow has never been known to fall. A few months ago I talked with a California man who had never seen falling snow in his life. California and Mexico have mountains where heavy snowfalls take place, but Florida is lacking in mountains and there is seldom a winter day when it is cold enough for a snowfall.

Mild winters occur in Southern States, though such a State as Texas may have a cold wave which makes the people think they have been moved right up to the North Pole.

Years ago, my grandmother told me about winters she had passed in New Orleans. "One day," she said, "there was a snowfall, and all the children rushed out to make snowballs. But the snow was so light that they had to mix it with mud in order to pack the balls!"

Children of Canada and the northern parts of the United States have several weeks or several months in which they can play with the snow. Much of my boyhood was spent in Wisconsin, and I can remember many frolics in the snow. Making "snowmen" was one sport, but I liked better to take part in snowball battles. There were times when I fought such fights for as long as 30 minutes at a stretch. Thirty minutes is a long time when you are busy making and throwing snowballs, and dodging them!

Since this is the winter season, I am preparing a leaflet telling about snow and ice. It will help to answer these questions: "What is the shape of a snowflake?" "Why does cold weather sometimes bring hail instead of snow?" "Why does ice float on water?" "Why is it important that water freezes from the top down instead of from the bottom up?"

If you want a copy of this leaflet, send a stamped envelope addressed to yourself to "Uncle Ray, Editor of Uncle Ray's Corner," in care of this newspaper. Please write plainly to help make sure that there will be no mistake about the leaflet reaching you.

ARLINGTON ZONING ENDED BY SAVILLE

SALES FOR TAXES READY

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Completing more than eight months of study, the Arlington County Zoning Commission under the leadership of Allen J. Saville, of Richmond, Va., who has directed the zoning of the county, held its final hearing on the completed draft of the zoning ordinance approved by commission prior to its being submitted to the county board of supervisors at the courthouse last night.

Preceding the reading of the ordinance, Engineer Saville pointed out the purposes of zoning which are to regulate the use of land construction, height and location of buildings, to establish building lines and also to provide for the enforcement of such regulations.

The ordinance reads:

That Arlington County be divided into six classes of districts as follows: "A"—residence district, "B"—residence districts, "C"—local business districts, "D"—general business districts, "E"—light industrial districts and "F"—heavy industrial districts.

The location and boundaries of the several districts are well defined on the maps which are found in the county engineer's office at the courthouse.

"A" Residence Zoning Rules.

The ordinance provides that in any "A" residence district no building or premises shall be used and no building shall be hereafter erected or structurally altered unless otherwise provided in the ordinance, except for any one or more of the following uses:

One-family detached dwelling, the office of a resident member of a recognized profession.

Customary home occupation, such as dressmaking, that such occupations shall be engaged in only by residents on the premises.

Churches and other places of worship, including parish houses and Sunday schools.

Schools, colleges, public libraries, public museums and art galleries.

Clubs and grounds for games or sports, municipal recreation buildings, playgrounds, parks and athletic fields.

Zone for Hospitals.

Hospitals or sanitarium, not treating contagious diseases and not for the care of epileptic or drug or liquor patients. HISTORIC YEW TREES STAY IN PETERSBURG

Bishop Cancels an Order for Removal to Garden in Washington.

PROTEST CAUSES ACTION

Fears of residents of Petersburg, Va., that Blandford Cemetery was to be desecrated through the removal of two historic Irish yew trees for the garden of the Right Rev. James F. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, were set at rest late yesterday when Bishop Freeman countermanded an order removing the trees for his garden at the Washington Cathedral.

"We were under a misapprehension," said Bishop Freeman last night. "The incident is now closed and the trees will not be removed from the Petersburg cemetery."

This settlement of the question was not brought about, however, until Canon Peter, of the Washington Cathedral, had been sent to Petersburg to see what had caused all the disturbance among the residents of that place and until Bishop Freeman had received a telegram from Mrs. George Cameron, jr., prominent in Petersburg club affairs, appealing to him to rescind the order for the removal of the trees.

Work Already Started.

According to advices from Petersburg, the storm started two days ago when City Manager Paul S. Morton learned that workmen from Washington were at work removing the two trees, which had been sold to the All Hallows Guild of the Capital by one of the heirs of the late Quinn B. Morton, who owned the square in which the trees were situated in Blandford Cemetery.

The city manager at once issued an order stopping work and appealed to the city attorney for a legal ruling upholding his order.

Citizens Send Telegram.

Meanwhile residents of Petersburg became much aroused over the incident and Mrs. Cameron sent the following telegram to Bishop Freeman:

"So as to beautify the bishop's garden, Mr. Merriman is preparing to remove four yew trees from our historic Colonial Blandford Cemetery. This desecration is causing distress in the community. Will you help us preserve this sacred spot that is revered by every citizen of Petersburg by countermanding this order?

(Signed) Elizabeth Bolling Cameron."

Mayor Wilson of Petersburg also joined in the chorus of protest against the removal of the trees with a public statement in which he declared that the city would never give permission to any individual or group to do anything which might mar the beauty of Blandford Cemetery, which he termed as "closest to the hearts of us all."

PAWN SHOPS URGED BY COMMISSIONERS

Report Sent to House District Chairman Points Out Need of Measure.

LOAN SHARKS RAPPED

Strong indorsement of the bill now pending in Congress to permit operation of pawn shops in the District was given by the Commissioners in a report sent yesterday to Representative Fred N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee.

Holding that small loans are absolutely necessary, and that needs of borrowers must be met with as little drain on their already straitened circumstances as possible, the Commissioners expressed their indorsement of the bill, in part, as follows:

"Experience has shown that the present small-loan law in the District, enacted on February 4, 1913, is ineffective. This is largely due to the fact that the rate of interest which is permitted thereunder is so small as to prohibit persons from functioning pursuant to its terms. This is best evidenced by the fact that not one license has been taken out under this law since it came into existence.

Interest Too Low, Claim.

"Persons and organizations which have made an exhaustive study in the field of small loans unanimously conclude that the rate therein prescribed is such as to make it impracticable for any organization to survive under its strict letter. Philanthropic associations and organizations which have gone into the field with a view to remedying the evil existing and with a view to operating on a minimum cost basis and with only a slight profit have found that they can not operate successfully without charging 2½ per cent per month.

"In addition to this, in the adjoining States of Virginia and Maryland, there are small-loan laws which permit organizations to charge 3½ per cent per month, hence another reason is presented making it unfeasible for concerns to operate in this jurisdiction under the act of 1913.

"The result is that 'loan sharks' have sprung up in the field and function without regulation and in such manner as to get persons, who are caused by this or that necessity to borrow, into such financial entanglements as never to be able to free themselves.

Small Loans Necessary.

"Persons who have given considerable study to the matter of small loans have likewise come to the conclusion that they are absolutely necessary. This being so, it becomes necessary to see that the needs of these borrowers are met with as little drain on their straitened circumstances as possible. For this reason the proposed bill is highly desirable.

"By making the permissible rate 3½ per cent per month, it is believed that reputable persons will enter the field, as they will thus be enabled to make a reasonable profit on their efforts and for money advanced. It is only through such legislation that unscrupulous money lenders functioning now, without regulation, can be eliminated. This, for the simple reason that persons will soon learn that by going to a duly authorized loan agency they will know exactly what they will be called upon to pay and thus dispose of the hazard which they face under existing conditions when applying for a loan.

"It might be suggested that prosecutions could be maintained against the present operators under the existing and similar acts, but experience here, as elsewhere, has shown this not to be effective. As a matter of fact, any such prosecution is not practicable for many reasons, the most important of which is that the mentality of a great many of the victims, who, through their unfortunate circumstances, are compelled to borrow money, is such that they do not comprehend what the real trahsaction is, and when called upon by a prosecutor for information are completely at a loss as to what actually transpired.

Prosecution Is Handicapped.

"Further than this, these persons are not willing to come out in the open and complain because of the fact that they fear such action would prevent them from obtaining loans at some future time, and that their inability to do so might mean the loss of their homes or inability to get funds with which to obtain the dire necessities of life.

"The Commissioners recommend the passage of the bill."

The measure would license and regulate the business of making small loans in sums of $300 or less, secured or unsecured, prescribing the rate of interest and charge therefor and penalties for violation, and regulating assignments of wages and salaries when given as securities for any such loans and for other purposes.

Similar bills have been enacted into laws in 24 States, and their constitutionality has been upheld on more than one occasion. The Commissioners point out that the measure now pending for the District has the unqualified indorsement of the Russell Sage Foundation.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA looked worried.

"What's troubling you?" I asked, flicking cigarette ashes on the new rug.

"That's one of the things troubling me," she admitted.

"What?"

"Ashes on the rug."

"Don't let that worry you. Ashes are good for rugs, as any dealer will tell you. Why, they even hire people——"

"They wouldn't have to hire you," she snapped, "you'd do it for nothing."

* * * *

I'M not sure about that. In my old age, now, I'm not so philanthropic as in the first flush of youth. Once, I went through the world scattering ashes with a free and liberal hand. Nowadays, charity begins and ends at home. And I told her so.

"Whatever you think about it," she said, "I'd just as soon have you more liberal. Visit the neighbors. Scatter ashes on their rugs—if you dare!"

There's appreciation for you. It just goes to show, a man never knows exactly what will please the ladies. Naturally, my feelings were hurt.

"Here I've been doing you a favor, as I thought, Luella, and you——"

She was all apologies. In her soothing way, she smoothed the rumpled feathers.

"There, there," she said, "I didn't know you'd take it so much to heart. Go ahead and spill all the ashes you please. Throw some on the oil paintings. Ashes ought to be good for oils, oughtn't they?"

"That's where you're wrong, Luella, "ashes and oil won't mix. They smudge."

"Oh," she exclaimed, "ashes to ashes and rugs to rugs——"

* * * *

IT occurred to me she was getting sarcastic.

"I'm not," she assured me, "just worried."

"That's what I'm trying to find out. What are you worried about?"

"I'm worried about you——"

"About me? Why?"

"You and your responsibilities."

"Responsibilities? Why, I haven't any, to speak of——"

* * * *

SHE smiled. "That's the trouble," she said, "you've got to get some.

I was reading a book today and it said a man ought to have a lot of responsibilities. So I've decided——"

"You've decided to load me up with responsibilities, eh?"

"Something like that. It says that all great men——"

"All great men are dead, Luella, and you know it."

"That may be so," she argued, "but responsibilities made them great——"

"——and made them dead, too."

"They won't kill you——"

"I know they won't, because I'm not going to get any."

"You've got me, haven't you?"

"Yes, but you're not a responsibility——"

"No? What am I?"

"You," I confessed, flicking another ash on the rug, "you are a liability."

And another argument was started.

PLEA IN ABATEMENT BY ZIHLMAN FOUGHT

Rover Again Defends Grand Jury's Legality in Case of Representative.

DONALDSON MOVE MADE

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw again came to the defense of the October grand jury yesterday when they requested the District of Columbia Supreme Court to refuse to quash the indictment in which Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee, is charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the operations of the F. H. Smith Co.

Zihlman, a former director of the company, Daniel R. Crissinger, former Comptroller of the Currency, and several other officials of the company, were jointly indicted by the October grand jury several weeks ago. All defendants have filed pleas in abatement in which they attacked the constitutionality of the grand jury as grounds why the indictment should be quashed.

Replications and demurrers to the pleas of all defendants were previously filed by the United States attorney's office and the same action was followed yesterday in regard to Zihlman.

Donaldson Asks Suit Dismissed.

Coincidentally, R. Golden Donaldson, president of the Commercial National Bank, and former attorney for the F. H. Smith Investment Co., yesterday requested the court to dismiss the suit filed by Andrew W. Cauldwell and others against himself, G. Bryan Pitts, Zihlman, Crissinger and others.

In the suit the plaintiffs asked that the Smith Co. be placed in the hands of a receiver. It also asked a receiver for the individual defendants expect Donaldson. In regard to Donaldson, the plaintiffs asked that he be required to pay back money he is said to have received as attorney fees and certain other funds he is said to have received from the Boyle-Robertson Construction Co. as fees for obtaining construction contracts for Smith Co. work.

Says Charges Are Insufficient.

Donaldson, who filed the motion as his own attorney, sets out that no facts are alleged sufficient to constitute a cause of action; that no facts are alleged sufficient to show any loss resulting to plaintiffs, and that no facts are alleged sufficient to show authority of plaintiff to sue on the supposed cause of action attempted to be asserted against the defendant.

Donaldson was not indicted along with Zihlman and others, but the grand jury in a special report recommended that the court do something about his connections with the Smith Co. The matter subsequently was referred to the grievence committee of the Bar Association.

Justice Wheat, following a hearing several weeks ago, denied the receivership requested in the suit, but questions of an injunction and accounting are still pending.

MAN FIGHTS RAIDER SEARCHING ROOMS

WHISKY REPORTED FOUND

Three persons were arrested in a raid yesterday afternoon by Sergt. O. J. Letterman and his vice squad. A sharp fistic encounter between one of the prisoners and R. J. Cox, one of the raiders, enlivened the invasion.

The raid was conducted on an apartment in a building on Champlain street near Twenty-third street nrothwest. Those arrested were Milton Walker, 22 years old; Ruth Johnson, 25 years old, and Delaware Ross, 49 years old, all colored.

Ross, who was reported to have occupied an apartment across the corridor, was in the raided apartment at the time the vice squad arrived. His presence aroused the suspicions of the raiders and Cox was dispatched to investigate the visitor's apartment, police reported. Rose is alleged to have attempted to prevent Cox from making the search and the fist fight ensued. Nineteen one-half gallon jars of rye whisky were found in the apartment, according to the raiders.

One quart of whisky was found in the apartment occupied by Walker and the Johnson woman, it is alleged. Walker was charged with sale and possession and booked at the First Precinct, where he was held in lieu of $3,500 collateral. The woman was charged with possession and booked on $500 bond. Rose was charged with possession and assault. He was held for $600 bond.

The raid was led by Letterman. George C. McCarron and James Mostyn participated in addition to Cox.

Justice Howard W. Smith, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, rendered a decision in a suit brought by R. N. Pollard and others against the estate of Joseph Willard, of Fairfax, former Ambassador to Spain during the administration of President Woodrow Wilson. The case was dismissed at the cost of the plaintiffs. The suit was for $75,000.

While Judge Smith's decision was not important in the annals of legal precedents, the case was very complicated and had attracted great interest in the State because of the prominence of the parties and because of the question in the application of the law to the facts as established were involved.

Prior to the World War the late Joseph Willard for sentimental reasons decided to build a railroad from Richmond to Urbanna, Va. A company was formed and the State Corporation Commission granted them a franchise, only 17 miles of the Richmond, Urbanna & Peninsular Railroad was ever constructed, this being from Richmond to the Pamunkey River.

War Stopped Work.

With the beginning of the World War with an increase in construction costs it was found that it would cost too much to continue construction of the road, so the late Mr. Willard purchased all of the stock of the company and the project was abandoned. The 17 miles which had been constructed was torn up in 1918 with the consent of the State Corporation Commission on account of the impracticability of construction.

In January, 1925, the Pollard interests filed suit, claiming that Mr. Willard had failed to perform the contract to build a railroad from Richmond to Urbanna. The main question involved in the suit was whether or not Willard had entered into an oral agreement with Mr. Pollard for a valid consideration to build such a railroad.

The plaintiffs claimed that they were the owners of a certain track of land at the proposed terminal of the railroad at Urbanna. Mr. Willard, desiring to acquire all the rights of the proposed railroad, had offered them the consideration in a written contract which was inadequate, and it was claimed that Mr. Pollard entered into an oral agreement with Mr. Willard under the terms of which Mr. Willard was to construct the road to Urbanna, so that Mr. Pollard and his associates would be compensated by the increased value of their land. Because of Mr. Willard's failure to construct the road, loss was suffered by Mr. Pollard.

Says Contract Was Invalid.
